400 German Planes in Smashing Daylong Raids On British Ports, Ships; 60 Downed, Britain Says

Nazis Declare 89 RAF Craft Bagged In Terrific Combat

Portland Naval Base Bears Brunt of Assault; Northern Ireland Blasted for the First Time.

By The Associated Press.
More than 400 German warplanes attacked England yesterday crashing head-on with Britain's defenders in an awesome, all-day combat that took a terrific toll of both sides and went screaming and blasting 300 miles up and down the coast from Harwich on the east to Portland naval base on the south.

The British reported at least 60 German planes were destroyed—the same number as in Thursday's great battle over Dover—and that of more than 400 Nazi aircraft, 200 were in a single screaming assault on Portland. Twenty-six British planes were admitted lost.

Germans Claim 89.
The Germans said 89 British planes were shot down, falling "like shot birds out of the sky," while they themselves lost 17 in what they called the most successful raid ever made on Britain. The conflict ranged from 25,000 feet over England's chalk precipices to roof-skimming dogfights over coastal towns while anti-aircraft cannon on ships and ashore thundered at the Nazi swarm.

Germany's gigantic air force returned and struck furious new blows early today against the northeast and southwest and evidently blasted at Northern Ireland for the first time.

The Germans dropped numerous bombs on a southwestern English town, scouted widely over the industrial midlands, Wales and elsewhere, and swept in repeatedly at a northeast point in the face of withering anti-aircraft fire.

A great explosion was heard in Northern Ireland along the coast at a time that planes were spotted overhead, indicating assault in a new quarter.

Portland Harbor Bombed.
Northern Ireland, part of the United Kingdom, long has been discussed by strategists as a possible object of the Hitler blitzkrieg. British reports did not indicate the extent or exact nature of the explosion there.

Portland harbor apparently bore the brunt of the earlier German

William Speer, Atlanta Leader, Succumbs at 75

Was Former Head of John Silvey Firm; Rites Tomorrow.

William Alexander Speer, 75, former president of the old John Silvey Company and a leader in Atlanta social life for a half-century, died yesterday at his residence, 1611 Peachtree road. He had been in ill health four years.

He was born in LaGrange November 3, 1865, son of the late Daniel Norwood Speer, former state treasurer and president of the Exposition Cotton Mills, and Aurelia Moreland Speer.

He attended the LaGrange public schools, before moving to Atlanta in 1880. He next studied at old Emory at Oxford, transferred to the University of Georgia, and later received a law degree from Vanderbilt University.

Enters Business.
After his graduation from Vanderbilt he married Miss Katie Silvey and went into business with her father, head of the John Silvey Company, one of the largest wholesale dry goods firms in the southeast.

On the death of his father-in-law he became president of the firm, remaining the head until the company went out of business in 1934.

Active in the work of the First Presbyterian church, he had served as an elder for the last 30 years. He was also a past commander of the John B. Gordon Camp of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Member of Clubs.
He was a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, the Piedmont Driving Club, the Capital City Club, the Atlanta Athletic Club, the Druid Hills Golf Club, and the Elks.

Food or Famine?

Ralph McGill faces some facts in his column, One Word More, on the editorial page today, and presents a fresh slant to the food problem of Europe, which is fast becoming a major offensive in the propaganda war of the combatant nations. For a realistic discussion of the moral and practical aspects of the dispute, turn to One Word More, on Page 4.

NAZI BOMBS SMASH BRITISH HARBOR—Wave after wave of massed German bombing planes smashed at the British naval base of Portland yesterday and raided along 300 miles of the coast from Dover to Weymouth. The German claims said Portsmouth was heavily shattered, wharves, docks and warehouses being bombed to ruins.

Vichy Regime Preparing To Scrap Unions

Favors Corporative Units Under Control of the Government.

VICHY, France, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Organized labor appeared headed for the scrap heap in France today. Preparations were shaping up rapidly for a corporative structure in which workers and employers are organized in units and their differences settled by the government.

Although France's great labor organization, C. G. T. (Confederation General de Travail) has abandoned its old "class struggle" principles and proclaimed its aims of protecting "interests of the nation," a violent campaign with all the earmarks of a death thrust has broken out against it.

The press unanimously is demanding a complete new organization of the nation's industrial life in corporative and professional groups.

Leon Jouhaux, who as secretary-general of C. G. T., was France's labor chief, and other leaders have been attacked simultaneously in newspapers for alleged pro-Soviet leanings prior to the war.

Accounts of a recent C. G. T. meeting at Toulouse said Jouhaux had announced his intention to retire in favor of four of his former assistants.

One of the first moves in the corporative program was taken by the National Confederation of Hotel, Restaurant and Cafe Proprietors, who called a meeting in Paris shortly to discuss organization of corporative units. A similar meeting was held at Lyon for unemployed areas.

Meanwhile, the Petain government declared 300 trains are now operating weekly between occupied and unoccupied zones, with 300,000 refugees returning home in occupied areas each week.

British Guns Split Up Enemy To Be Picked Off by R. A. F.

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE.

ON ENGLAND'S SOUTHEAST COAST, Aug. 11.—(AP)—From a balcony spattered with machine-gun fire and jarred by deafening bombardment I saw a new chapter in the Battle of Britain written today in a Sabbath sky thick with airplanes and spotted with mushroom puffs from anti-aircraft shells.

Between attacks I rushed with other onlookers to gather shell fragment souvenirs. We found machinegun bullets imbedded in the concrete a few feet from where we stood. Anti-aircraft guns thundered a nerve-racking din 100 yards away.

The author of this eyewitness story is a former Atlantan, having been sent from this city to London last year.

The raiders screamed down—sometimes from 15,000 feet up—out of the early morning sun, pouncing on coastal balloon barrages. But from the ground and in the air the British gave them a hot reception.

Nazi Planes Hit.

In one attack I saw four German planes apparently bagged by British fighters and anti-aircraft shells. Another correspondent farther down the coast counted one, and possibly two others, plummeting from great height and trailing dense smoke.

The raid began as a surprise attack on the balloons, but developed soon into fierce dogfights, and was followed by repeated attacks by larger and larger waves, finally attacking the town as well as the waterfront.

The gunfire rolled like thunder. One flight of raiders was split into two parts by anti-aircraft fire which kept one group performing aerial acrobatics while British pilots engaged the other.

Before church services were over new flights of raiders dived out of the sun, with machineguns and bomb sights aimed at streets and buildings.

There was a lull and I went out to gather souvenirs, but guns with 100 yards of us blazed away and observers ducked for cover.

An air raid warden strode past with the warning:

"Better take cover, they're machinegunning the streets. Don't say you weren't warned."

But through the firing balloon barrage crews worked as calmly as carpenters filling new balloons to replace those shot down.

Most church services proceeded without interruption through the din. Two churches, however, were struck by bombs and 40 children in a Sunday school were showered by glass and debris. None of the children was injured seriously.

Homes Demolished.

There was no authoritative figure on casualties. It was reported, however, that a whole row of homes was demolished in a southwestern town during a 15-minute attack by 150 planes. Forty homes were smashed and 140 others damaged. Casualties there were described as "amazingly low."

Outside one damaged church the rector placed a sign:

"Give thanks to God. Thanksgiving services will be held at 8:30 p. m. in the open air."

At several places British motorboats put out to pick up pilots who bailed out as their planes dived into the sea.

From a waterfront esplanade bombs could be seen bursting all around one ship, almost hiding it at times with columns of spray. After the attack the ship could be seen, continuing on its way.

Willkie Warns Campaign Book Space Buyers

Says Advertisers in Democratic Journal To Be Prosecuted.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie said today he wanted "to warn all corporations and their officials" that if he were elected all purchasers of advertising in the Democratic campaign book "will be relentlessly prosecuted."

In a statement the Republican nominee said press reports indicated that "Boss Flynn, of the Bronx," (Edward J. Flynn) the newly appointed chairman of the Democratic National Committee, proposes to continue the pernicious and illegal practice of extracting political contributions from corporations through the purchase by them of advertisements in the Democratic campaign book and the purchase of such campaign books.

"I wish to warn all corporations and their officials," Willkie's statement continued, "that such contributions are a direct violation of both the federal corrupt practices act and the second Hatch act recently enacted by congress."

"If I am elected President of the United States, all violations will be relentlessly prosecuted. Likewise, all who participate, including solicitors, purchasers of advertisements and of campaign books, will be prosecuted for conspiracy to violate the law."

He further asserted that "anyone representing any political party" who engaged in practices similar to the sale and purchase of advertising in the Democratic campaign book "will be prosecuted."

"There will be no favoritism shown in the enforcement of the law," he added.

Carolina City Cut Off, In Darkness, Waters Sweep Business Area

Mountainous Waves Accompany 100-Mile Wind; Vacationers Rush to Havens; Lines Down, Trees Uprooted.

A tropical hurricane smashed wind and water through historic Charleston yesterday leaving widespread damage in the crippled and darkened city, but apparently without loss of life, the Charleston News and Courier reported to The Constitution last night via Navy radio to the Army radio station at Fort McPherson.

Atlanta Center Of Activity For Storm Work

Red Cross, WPA, Army Prepare To Meet Emergency.

Atlanta immediately became the center of hurricane emergency work yesterday as Red Cross, WPA and army officials prepared to meet emergency help calls from Savannah and Charleston.

The Army radio station at Fort McPherson was the first station to maintain regular schedules with Charleston, which remained cut off from the world for at least 11 hours.

Schedules were also maintained with Fort Moultrie, six miles from Charleston. The fort was partially under water.

No Tybee Contact.
All efforts to reach Tybee beach were unsuccessful.

Robert MacDougall, state WPA administrator, reported he had issued instructions for crews to be put to work in Savannah this morning to clean up the debris.

Telephone company officials here reported that all lines north out of Savannah are out of service, but that several lines into the city were being maintained through Waycross. They said the Savannah system was being operated on emergency gasoline power.

Crews Leave Here.
Engineers and emergency crews left here last night for Savannah. It was estimated that between 3,000 and 5,000 telephones were in trouble in the Savannah area.

All communication lines between Savannah and Savannah Beach were out of service.

Officials reported that all lines into and out of Charleston were out of service, but that a checkup disclosed that the trouble was in a radius of less than 30 miles from the city. They said emergency crews have already been dispatched from Charlotte and other Carolina towns and that by tomorrow they expected to have the lines in service.

Lines Damaged.

The Georgia Power Company reported last night that three emergency repair crews—two from Atlanta and one from Athens—have been sent to Charleston and another crew from Atlanta sent to Savannah.

They said the high wind had done some damage to distribution lines in the Augusta area as the storm swung inward after hitting the coast at Savannah.

Unconfirmed reports said that six persons had been drowned at Folly Beach, near Charleston.

Full force of the hurricane—which reached 100 miles an hour at Charleston—apparently struck at Beaufort and Parris Island, which at an early hour this morning had not been heard from. The News and Courier reported that all communications to Parris Island, Marine Corps base, were down.

At 2 o'clock this morning, all efforts of the Charleston Navy Yard radio station to contact the Parris Island radio had been unsuccessful. Nearly 1,000 marines are stationed there.

Two Die in Savannah.
Roaring in from sea at hurricane velocity, the storm struck shortly after noon along a hundred-mile front, from below Savannah to Georgetown, S. C., 60 miles north of Charleston.

Winds reaching a velocity of 70 miles an hour battered Savannah, leaving two dead in their wake. Historic old shade trees were uprooted, plate glass windows were smashed, and several buildings and homes were unroofed.

High tides were expected to wash over Tybee Island early this morning, reports from Savannah indicated.

Women and children were evacuated from the beach earlier in the day, but word reaching here indicated there were a number of men left on the island.

600 Refugees at Fort
Fort Screven, located on Tybee Island, was unheard from early this morning.

Six hundred civilians from Sullivan Island and nearby regions took refuge in army barracks at Fort Moultrie, six miles from Charleston, according to a message relayed by the Army radio at Fort McPherson, in Atlanta. The message said damage to the fort was nominal and no fatalities were reported nearby.

Charleston was a stricken city, its power and communication facilities crippled, and water and debris in some of its streets waist high. For at least 11 hours Charleston was cut off from the world. Early this morning, communications still were down except for messages from one radio amateur and the Navy station's messages for The Constitution.

High tides were expected again early this morning, with the possibility the low areas of the city would be flooded again.

Winds Hit Inland.

The storm appeared to have veered inland after wreaking its fury on the coast, and presumably was spending itself northwest of Charleston. The weather bureau announced, late in the afternoon that "the worst appears to be over."

Old residents said the storm was the severest since the turn Continued on Page 5, Column 3.

Nazi Leader Praises Lindbergh Speech

Free Trade Hit By President Of Reichsbank

Says Nazi Victory Will Insure Peaceful Economic Competition.

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Walter Funk, Reichsbank president and economic minister, roundly scored free trade nations, including the United States, today and declared that barter is the only salvation for world commerce. He agreed with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh that:

"When the rich get too rich and the poor too poor, something happens."

Opening the Eastern Fair sponsored by Reichsmarschal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Funk asserted that only German victory in the war would again make possible "what always should have been: peaceful economic competition in the interest of all nations participating in world trade."

Blockade Demolished.

He declared the British blockade had been demolished "politically and militarily."

Goering spoke briefly, calling attention to the fair's eastern and Russian exhibits. Semiofficial sources pointed out the appearance of the first Soviet exhibit here as indicative of German trade trends.

Funk attacked the American-suggested "cartel" to dispose of the western world's surpluses and charged free trade nations with resorting to the embargo and boycott to dominate world trade.

"The Ottawa arrangement, and to cite a more recent example the projected American cartel, really are no show pieces of liberalistic economic comprehension," he said.

"Used for Fuel."

Under the Ottawa agreement of 1932 Britain accorded preferential treatment to her possessions in empire trade.

Funk declared that unless Europe could sell to manufacturing nations its overseas accumulations of raw materials piling up as a result of the war, "they must be thrown into the sea or used for fuel."

Referring to Lindbergh's remark, in a speech at Chicago August 4, the economic minister recalled his own address in Rome 18 months ago when he said "the old rich (nations) will become poor and the young poor will become rich."

In Normal Way.

"England cannot take away the advance Germans have made through seven years of hard work under the jealousy or ridicule of the remainder of the world," he said.

"There were two things forgotten: that the war will be decided in a normal military way, and that the German economic situation since the World War has been changed from the ground up, and furthermore that the German people of 1940 are not those of 1914."

Russia Fails To Get Possession Of Lithuania's Berlin Legation

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Two Russian embassy secretaries tried again today by personal appearance and telephone—to get possession of the Lithuanian legation, but the gate was slammed in their faces and the phone didn't answer.

First they drove up to the gate and rang the bell.

"Whom do you wish to see?" asked the caretaker.

"None of your business—we're masters of these premises," was the icy retort.

The caretaker disappeared, leaving the callers at the gate.

"Lock the iron gates for the rest of the day," the minister, Kazys Skirpa, ordered. The caretaker did, leaving the Russians, growing angrier and angrier, out on the street.

That was at 9 a. m. At 5 p. m. they still were trying to get the legation to surrender by telephone.

On their first attempt to get the Lithuanian legation Friday they were told to "go peddle your papers."

There was no indication that Germany was taking official cognizance of the affair to force the Lithuanians to turn the legation over.

The British, holding undisputed command of the Suez canal and the Red sea and Gulf of Aden on the south, laughed off Italian claims that successes in British Somaliland "closes the back door to Suez, severs the route to India and bottles up the British Mediterranean fleet."

British naval officials described as "absurd" Italian claims that their forces had been cut off in North African waters, since they said the Italians have no warships in the Red sea and the Gulf of Aden.

Furthermore, they declared half of the submarines Italy was known to have sent there have been destroyed since June 1, in addition to one captured by a British trawler.

Japanese Will Increase French Demands, Report

HANOI, French Indo-China, Aug. 11.—(AP)—General Issaku Nishihara, head of a Japanese military mission, will bring new pressure to bear against French Indo-China officials at conferences this week to obtain their "maximum co-operation" against China, reliable informants said today.

These informants said Ushihara paused at Canton Friday to reassure General Teizō Ando, commander of Japanese forces in China, that however diplomatic his methods, he was determined ultimately to realize Japan's aspirations.

Germany Asks Rumania To Delay Jewish Laws

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 11.—(AP)—(Passed by Censor)—Diplomatic circles reported tonight that Germany has asked Rumania to delay application of anti-Jewish laws for the present.

Nazi intervention was reported to be based on the belief that Jews occupy so vital a position in the country's economic life that their sudden exclusion would impair production and slow the flow of needed supplies to Germany.

Britain Vows To Free Lands Hitler Invaded

'Soon We Shall Dominate Air Over Germany,' Poles Promised.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—(AP)—British Minister of Economic Warfare Hugh Dalton tonight told German-conquered Poles that Britain would call "at a chosen moment" on all whom Adolf Hitler has vanquished to rise and "greet the armies which will land from England upon the shores of Europe."

In a broadcast, Dalton said the moment would come "when we have drowned and destroyed any Germans who attempt to invade our island, when we have conquered the air over Germany."

"In this great struggle against German barbarism, our victory is sure," he said. "There is an old saying that in all wars England always wins the last battle. So it will be again... soon we shall dominate the air over Germany, just as at the beginning of this war the Germans dominated the air over Poland. And from that day the complete defeat of Germany will follow soon."

Dalton reassured Poles that "the hour of your deliverance is near."

Airplane Corporation Executive Is Missing

FARMINGDALE, N. Y., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Police tonight broadcast a nine-state alarm for Bert M. Harvey, 38, missing personnel director of the Ranger Aircraft Engine division of the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation.

Harvey was last seen about noon Friday in his office where he interviews applicants for jobs in the plant for manufacturing for government defense a new 24-cylinder "H-type" air-cooled engine of 1,000 horsepower.

Harvey's wife, Margaret, told police that she knew of no reason why Harvey should disappear.

89 R.A.F. Ships Downed, Says German Claim

attacks. The Germans said the wharves, buildings and facilities of that great naval base suffered crippling damage, with huge fires started and virtually every ship in the port sunk.

The British acknowledged undetermined civilian casualties up and down the coast and destruction of large numbers of houses and of crowd-filled churches, but were chary of reporting damage to military objectives.

Raiders Believed Dwindling.

Although the German raiders stabbed at England with extreme vigor, British military men expressed belief the threat of a blitzkrieg invasion is dwindling day by day toward a vanishing point near the end of September.

The raiders came, flight after flight from inland airports British reinforcements turned the fight into a wholesale battle for mastery in the air over the bomb-battered coast.

Weymouth and Portland were attacked inland as well as along the waterfront.

One southeastern coast town had at least four separate raids started at dawn. There, alone, observers counted at least 10 German planes downed in almost ceaseless dogfights.

Balloons Blasted.

The raiders' cannon-carrying Messerschmitts blasted down at least three barrage balloons guarding the vital harbors, tons of bombs struck at least two coastal towns, dive-bombers attacked shipping, and streets were splattered with machinegun fire.

Britain beat at the raiders with the full strength of her coast defense system—showing attacking squadrons with anti-aircraft fire and hurling power diving counter-attacks down on the bombers.

Casualties in the bomb-wrecked districts of the towns were not estimated. Official announcements indicated only that there were some deaths.

A bomb hit one church, shattering glass and plaster on 40 children singing in Sunday school. None was injured seriously and their parents hustled them home or to shelter. Another church also was hit.

Gather Souvenirs.

Some of the curious scurried about from shelter to shelter even during the stunning crash of bombs and the roar of anti-aircraft fire, gathering flattened machinegun bullets and shell fragments for souvenirs.

DNB said the raid on the 70 merchant ships was made by "relatively weaker bombing forces" and was merely a "side assignment."

The convoy was said to have been sailing a south-southwest course when it was intercepted about 12 miles northwest of the port of Margate at the mouth of the Thames.

In air battles with planes protecting the ships, DNB said, five British Spitfires and two Bristol Blenheims were shot down.

Also independent of the great channel battle, the agency reported, seven barrage balloons and five Spitfire pursuit planes were destroyed at Dover, two Bristol-Blenheims at Southampton, and two Spitfires at Canterbury.

It said the channel was dotted with small vessels trying to rescue crews of downed British planes from the choppy channel waters and charged that one German craft downed by two Bristol-Blenheims was a plainly labelled German Red Cross seaplane.

One German Messerschmitt pursuit squadron was credited with bagging 22 British planes at a loss of only two of its own and another was said to have downed 16.

Threat Believed Dwindling.

Although the German raiders stabbed at England with extreme vigor, British military men expressed belief the threat of a blitzkrieg invasion is dwindling day by day toward a vanishing point near the end of September.

The raiders came, flight after flight from inland airports British reinforcements turned the fight into a wholesale battle for mastery in the air over the bomb-battered coast.

THE ATTACK ON ENGLAND—This map shows the wide area of southern England which yesterday felt the most serious threat of invasion in almost 1,000 years. Uncounted swarms of Nazi warplanes struck at towns and shipping along 300 miles of Britain's coast, from Pembroke on the west to Norwich on the east. Shaded area shows where Nazi and English planes tangled in the biggest air battle of the European conflict. Berlin claimed 89 British planes were shot down and Britain said 60 Nazi raiders were bagged.

British Fliers 'Knock Ideas' Out of Nazis

Air Battles Game of Guess, Germans Following Same 'Pattern.'

By DREW MIDDLETON.

WITH THE ROYAL AIR FORCE FIGHTER COMMAND.

Aug. 11.—(AP)—Today's mass air fight over England's south coast was a "good engagement," but the "same old pattern," to the men who map Britain's sky defense and play a deadly game of guess with raiding squadrons.

I saw the defense system in operation as the fighter command headquarters received the terse report:

"Upwards of 150 German aircraft approaching... Three British squadrons reinforcing those already in the air. One fighter squadron refueling."

"Doing All Right."

The air vice marshal nodded. "Same thing as Thursday," he observed. "Simultaneous attacks which get hotter until finally, far from the original point of attack, they throw in a couple of hundred planes. We're doing all right. We shoot down four of theirs or every British loss."

Outside fast Hurricanes could be heard roaring to the sky fight. "When Jerry gets an idea," the vice air marshal said, "he sticks to it until we knock it out of his head. Here's what he tries to do: 'First blow comes here.' He points to a northeastern port of England on his huge map. 'Then a bigger attack here. Finally attacks on convoys here and here.'"

Game of Guess.

He went on with his terse description of Britain's counter-tactics as calmly as a college professor expounding a problem in mathematics.

Occasionally from an interoffice town alone, wiping out an entire family. Two air raid wardens were killed while hustling others to shelter.

Prime Minister Churchill sent the war cabinet's congratulations to Britain's fighter squadrons for beating back mass German air attacks Thursday. The British claimed 61 raiders were destroyed.

An air ministry communique credited the British air force with daylight and dark attacks into Germany Saturday.

Nazi-used airdromes in Holland and France and on the Nazi-held British island of Guernsey were targets of the daylight bombings.

At night the British attacked the docks at Hamburg, the Wilhelmshaven naval base, wharves at Duisberg, and airdromes and supply and industrial targets through the low countries and northeastern Germany, it said.

Three British planes were missing.

120 British Soldiers and Sailors Perish on Torpedoed Liner

Transport Sunk At Night, Says Announcement

740 Survivors Taken Aboard Rescue Ship; Blast Kills Victims.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—(P)—The 7,290-ton Egyptian liner Mohamed Ali El-Kebir, converted for use as a British transport, was torpedoed at night in the Atlantic, and sank with 120 soldiers and sailors missing, the admiralty said tonight.

The announcement said 740 survivors were taken aboard a ship that reached the liner in the two hours she remained afloat. They were landed at a Scottish port.

Most of the 120 listed as missing were soldiers sleeping below deck at the time of the explosion. The admiralty did not say when the Mohamed Ali El-Kebir was attacked.

"Seven hundred and forty survivors have been landed out of the total number of 860 who were aboard," the announcement said.

Authoritative quarters maintained silence as to the point from which the transport sailed.

A number of soldiers drowned when they jumped overboard as the transport began to list.

Lloyds naval register lists the liner as owned by the Pharonic Mail Line, operating out of Alexandria, Egypt.

Draft Measure Backers See Willkie Boost 5 Days Ahead

Candidate Expected To Support Principle in Acceptance Speech.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—(P)—Reports reaching Capitol Hill that Wendell L. Willkie might endorse the principle of military conscription in his address Saturday accepting the Republican presidential nomination gave new encouragement today to supporters of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory service bill.

Although Willkie has not made public his views on compulsory training, leading congressional Republicans were known to be proceeding on the premise that the nominee would take a position somewhat similar to that assumed by President Roosevelt—favoring conscription in principle, but leaving the details to Congress.

Thus far Senate Republicans have shown themselves to be about as divided as Democrats on the measure, which would require the registration of about 12,000,000 young men from 21 through 30 years old. About 4,500,000 of these would be subject to a year's military training.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leader and party nominee for the vice presidency, has been silent on his position, but friends have said that while he might support proposals to compromise the measure they would not be surprised to find him voting for it on final passage.

Any declaration by Willkie on conscription was not expected by most Republican legislators to specify mechanical details. Accordingly, both proponents and opponents of the Burke-Wadsworth measure said they felt the nominee's stand would have little effect on the vote on compromise proposals.

The House military committee expected to act quickly on a measure already passed by the Senate permitting the President to order the National Guard and reserves to active duty and send it to the rules committee to obtain legislative right of way for its consideration by the House.

The committee scheduled new hearings Tuesday on the conscription bill, with Secretary of the Navy Knox as the chief witness.

Atlanta To Get Her Forecasts 5 Days Ahead

Long Range Predictions, Starting This Week, To Be General.

Crossing his fingers to ward off any possible jinx, Uncle Sam this week starts telling the nation—including Atlanta—what weather to anticipate five days hence.

The long-range predictions, dress-rehearsed last week when workers analyzed thousands of reports of the entire northern hemisphere and drew more than 60 charts to test the technique, will be prepared at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and sent to the weather bureau's district forecasters.

George W. Mindling, meteorologist at the Atlanta weather bureau, said last night the innovation will provide special weather map analyses to assist the forecasters in the various districts.

Long-Range Forecasts. Atlanta is part of the Jacksonville district, he added, which includes Georgia, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina.

The maps will arrive at Jacksonville Tuesdays and Fridays, beginning this week, and the special forecasts based on them will be available Wednesday and Saturday mornings, Mindling said.

"The Wednesday reports will cover four days, and the Saturday reports, five days," he continued. "Naturally, this means a bit of overlapping on the time period, but that's nothing serious. Conditions change, there are always variable factors, and so it doesn't matter."

At Cambridge, Mass., home of MIT, Dr. C. G. Rossby, special assistant to the chief of the United States weather bureau and head of the institute's department of meteorology for many years, announced all was in readiness.

The project will be conducted jointly by the weather bureau, the Department of Agriculture and the institute.

Dr. Rossby and Dr. Hurd C. Willett, also of the institute, researched four years to develop the system. They stressed its experimental nature. Only $20,000 of government funds have been allotted for the budget year.

Dr. Rossby said: "The only way to find out about the method is to try it. If it is successful, we will incorporate it in the weather bureau as a regular service function."

Picnickers won't be told there will be showers Thursday afternoon. Forecasts will be general rather than detailed. The prediction will not be for each of the five days but for weather most likely to prevail over that period. For example, the forecast's greatest detail might say "Thursday is going to have precipitation above normal."

Dr. Rossby visualized the five-day-forecast system as a big factor in military operations in event of war.

"War is more than a 24-hour proposition. No army would plan intense aerial activity over an area on a certain day if it were known objectives would be hidden by low-hanging clouds," he said.

No magical machines will be used by the forecasting staff. The staff is composed of two forecasters, three statistical workers, two radio listeners and four engaged in collection of radio reports and plotting.

Exiled Leader Of Fascists In Mexico Dies

General Rodriguez Victim of Anemia in Juarez.

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 11.—General Rodriguez, banished leader of the Mexican Gold Shirts, died last night in Juarez, just six days after his return from a four-year exile in the United States.

The general, suffering from aplastic anemia, had been critically ill for several weeks. Last Sunday relatives attempted to take him across the international bridge in an ambulance, but Mexican officials turned them back.

The next day, President Cardenas, learning of the exile's condition, permitted him to return to his native land. He died at the home of his mother.

It was Cardenas who banished Rodriguez as an enemy August 13, 1936, after his Fascist organization was ordered dissolved. Since then Rodriguez had lived in the United States on a visitor's permit. The Goldshirt chieftain acquired his military title while serving with General Francisco Villa.

40-Hour Week Discarded by Army and Navy

Workers, However, Will Be Paid for Overtime Under New Set-Up.

By MAX BOYD.

The 40-hour week is going by the board as a rigid ceiling upon the working hours of mechanics and laborers in army arsenals and navy shipyards.

Secretaries Stimson and Knox are credited widely with having convinced President Roosevelt that this step was necessary to prevent the government workers from being lured away by private industries offering over-time work at time and one-half rates.

In any event, Secretary Stimson has just put a 48-hour week into effect in the War Department's six manufacturing arsenals and Secretary Knox has given the Navy's shipyards and shore stations permission to work civilians 48 hours a week, even more if necessary, to hasten construction of the two-ocean navy.

Pay for Over-Time. Both specified, however, that the mechanics and laborers affected by the orders should be paid at time and one-half rates for hours worked in excess of 40 a week.

All signs indicate that it is upon this line—over-time pay rate for work above 40 hours a week—that the administration has chosen to take its stand in the gathering controversy as to how many hours the American workman should labor to make secure the nation's defenses.

It is possible, of course, that this policy may be altered as the projected 70 per cent fleet expansion—which is in addition to present naval building—and the army's vast manufacturing program get into full stride.

But for the present, at least, there is every indication that the administration has decided to defend the wage and hour law against amendments urged by some persons in and out of Congress who say that France fell because German workers labored long hours and French workers few.

Fleming States Stand. Colonel Philip B. Fleming, the wage-hour administrator, left little doubt of this when he said in a radio address Saturday night:

"As a soldier whose primary interest is in national defense, I want to take this opportunity to assure you that no relaxation of the wage and hour law at this

Japanese Bomb Russian Embassy

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 12. (Monday).—(P)—Ninety Japanese bombing planes dumped tons of explosives on this provisional Chinese capital yesterday in their 25th raid since last May.

Less than 50 persons were reported killed or wounded.

The Soviet embassy was hit for the third time in three months—a bomb demolishing one of the embassy buildings recently rebuilt after an earlier bombing.

Bombs again exploded near the hotel where the Associated Press correspondent and other newspapermen have their headquarters, knocking off most of the plaster which remained after previous raids.

Willkie Talks With F. D. R.'s Son, Elliott

Hoover Cautions G. O. P. Candidate Not To Go 'Too Strong.'

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 11.—(P)—With former President Hoover seated beside him, Wendell L. Willkie today asked and obtained an interview with Elliott Roosevelt, a son of the President.

The Republican nominee, chatting with reporters in his resort hotel suite here, was advised that the younger Roosevelt was in the hotel.

Questioned as to whether he would see the President's son, Willkie picked up the telephone. "Hello," said Willkie, "this is Wendell Willkie, could you come up for a little talk? Thanks."

Hoover, here for a talk about campaign strategy and issues, was seated close to the Republican nominee on a divan in the latter's hotel suite here.

Hoover, in an almost inaudible voice, whispered to Willkie as the candidate placed his telephone call.

"Wouldn't go too strong on that!"

The President's son and Hoover took adjoining suites in the resort hotel where Willkie is staying. Roosevelt said the situation was pure coincidence.

time is either necessary or desirable."

The wage-hour law requires at present that employees be paid time and a half for all hours worked over 42 in any week; it provides that after October 24 of this year the work week beyond which overtime rates must be paid shall drop to 40. This law does not apply to government employees, but to private workers in interstate industries.

Lamp Thrown in Brawl

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 11.—(P)—Seven persons perished at dawn today in a flaming residence that was fired by an oil lamp thrown during an argument. All were Negroes.

Two men and a woman were killed by police seeking to determine which of them threw the lamp.

A father, mother and their four children were among the victims. They were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Thompson; Mary, 1; Elizabeth, 6; Martha, 4, and Ruth, 2. Pinkie Brown, 65, was the other fatality. Walter Moore, Carrie Dorsey and James Peterson were booked by police for investigation. They also are Negroes.

Duke, Duchess Attend Church, Hear Bishop

Clergyman Once Burned Picture of Windsor's Wedding.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 11. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor spent a hot morning in church today, listening to a sermon by the Bermuda bishop who once tore down and burned a picture of their wedding.

Several times during the long Anglican service the Duke mopped his perspiring brow with his handkerchief, and once briskly manipulated a palm-leaf fan in an effort to cool off himself and the former Wallis Warfield who sat beside him.

There was nothing in Bishop Arthur Heber Browne's sermon which could be interpreted as a reference to the Windsors' marriage or the British constitutional crises which preceded it.

It just happened to be one of the hottest Sunday mornings Bermuda has had this summer. The rest of the congregation looked just as uncomfortable as the Duke and Duchess.

The bishop later said his sermon, based on St. Paul's epistle to Philemon, had been written before he knew the Windsors were coming.

Mexico Fears Fight Naming Of Congress

More Troops, Peasants of Cardenas Party Called to Capital.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—(P)—Mexico looked forward with apprehension today to solution of that electoral struggle within the next three weeks.

This week—probably on Thursday—congress is to determine which candidates were voted into the new legislature, to take office September 1. The new congress, in turn, is to announce the winner of the heated presidential campaign between General Manuel Avila Camacho, the administration candidate, and Independent General Juan Andreu Almazan. Both have claimed victory by decisive margins.

The Almazanistas have declared repeatedly they would establish their own congress and confirm their candidate's "triumphal election" if they were denied seats in the legislature.

President Lazaro Cardenas said yesterday that "only the duly constituted legislative bodies are competent" to determine the election results. This was interpreted as aimed directly at the Almazanistas.

Lending strength to rumors of impending trouble were reports from military quarters that several thousand additional troops were being moved into the capital and that 60,000 peasants of the administration party would begin arriving here on Tuesday.

Army Pilot Loses Life

As Plane Falls in Lake

BOULDER CITY, Nev., Aug. 11. (UP)—An army training plane fell from formation over Lake Mead, behind Boulder dam, today and crashed with its pilot, Lieutenant Laurence E. Wernberg, New York city, into 500 feet of water.

It was a BT-13 type plane being ferried with four others from the Vultee factory in Los Angeles to Kelly Field, Texas. It went into a dive over the lake following a takeoff from nearby Las Vegas, where the formation made an overnight stop.

The accompanying planes landed here. Crews began grappling in the water to locate the ship and the pilot's body.

Surplus for Alabama Foreseen by Director

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 11.—(P)—State Finance Director A. R. Forsyth says that $9,783,000 in general fund appropriations will be met in full and that the Alabama treasury will have a $224,000 balance at the end of the fiscal year September 30. A surplus of $490,495 was brought over from 1938-39.

VAL D'OR, Quebec, Aug. 11.—(P)—A Malartic, Quebec, father and mother and five children drowned today in an automobile which plunged off a ferry into six feet of water in Lemoyne lake. Witnesses told a coroner's jury the father, Joseph Jean, apparently stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake while on the ferry.

Woman Killed By Flying Glass In Coastal City

Man Dies of Heart Attack When Tree Hits Home.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 11.—(AP) At least one death from flying debris and widespread property damage of a minor nature resulted here today from the city's worst tropical storm since the turn of the century.

Annie Wade, a Negro woman, was killed by flying glass on a street.

Jesse Wallace, an industrial plant police officer, suffered a fatal heart attack when a tree crashed into his home.

Steady winds of 68 miles an hour were recorded shortly before 4 o'clock and gusts went well over 70.

Damage was estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

The barometer started rising shortly before 7 o'clock, indicating the worst of the storm was over. Heavy winds were blowing at that hour, however, having risen again after a lull of an hour. A barometer reading of 28.78 inches, the lowest in the city's history, was recorded during the blow.

Warning Given.

(More than 8,000 weekenders at Tybee beach, 20 miles from Savannah, received advance warning to flee inland over the only causeway from the island resort, the United Press said.)

(A checkup showed the water system, as well as the electric light system, had been damaged. The artesian wells, worked by electric pumps, failed to supply water in hundreds of homes and utilities engineers said it would be four days before complete light and water service could be restored.)

(High winds uprooted hundreds of trees, smashed scores of store windows and ripped off several hundred feet of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad storage docks.)

Cutter to Sail.

(The United States Coast Guard cutter Tallapoosa was in Savannah river and was reported under orders to sail for Charleston as soon as the storm abated.)

A fire at the high naval stores terminal, believed to have been caused by a falling power line, was brought under control.

The weather bureau warned that the high winds might return during the night. As the storm progressed, indicating the center of the disturbance was passing to the north of the city.

Worst Since '80's.

Bob McCuen, of the Savannah Morning News, described the blow as the hardest Savannah has had since back in the '80's.

Telephone communications were hampered at the storm's height. These services were being quickly restored.

A driving, blinding rain accompanied the blow and pieces of tin roofs were blown about the city.

HURRICANE STRIKES—Sweeping in from the sea, a tropical hurricane hurling up mountainous waves hammered the Georgia and South Carolina coasts yesterday. Charleston was cut off from the world as communication lines were battered down by the howling wind.

in general confusion. The greatest damage was believed to be to the city's thousands of beautiful trees which were uprooted at every turn. Some automobiles were damaged by the falling timbers.

Houses Unroofed.

According to incomplete reports received from Savannah Beach, resort on Tybee island near here, damage there was not great.

Many houses were unroofed, but only one was reported blown from its foundations.

The highway was reported partially washed out in one spot and was reported impassable tonight. The road to the island was inundated in many spots and logs washing in from the river and marsh were an added hazard to the few motorists who attempted the drive just before the storm's peak.

Most of the population of the island was evacuated by private cars and buses to the city this morning.

In Savannah persons whose homes were partially destroyed were housed in fire station dormitories. Many homes were unroofed and the heavy rain made them uninhabitable.

Reports indicated that practically all downtown hotels were filled with refugees from the beach and tourists.

BOATS PUT INTO PORT AT SOUTHPORT, N. C.

(SOUTHPORT, N. C., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Several small craft and coastwise vessels put into Southport in the face of the tropical hurricane which hit today in the Charleston-Savannah area. Other boats were expected to seek a haven here during the night.)

This afternoon there were no evidences of the storm here, and no heavy wind. Most people, however, left the near-by beaches, fearing that the storm might come in this direction. At Wilmington, north of here, no exodus from the beaches was reported.

IDaho CO-OPS GROW.

Nearly one-third of the farm products of Idaho are handled through co-operatives, C. O. Youngstrom, University of Idaho extension economist, disclosed in a survey conducted with co-operation of the Farm Credit Administration.

Constitution Gets The First Reports

First definite reports of the hurricane damage at Charleston reached The Constitution last night through the co-operation of two service radio stations and the Charleston News and Courier. Early yesterday, The Constitution asked army authorities at Fort Moultrie, then with the Navy Yard Station at Charleston.

The navy station contacted the Charleston News and Courier, which prepared probably the first bulletin to reach the outside world after the full effect of the storm could be determined. The only previous messages had been from an amateur relaying messages for aid and a Red Cross message to Washington, neither of which gave other than general reports early this morning.

The only direct messages were those to The Constitution and from one radio amateur.

Two representatives, Miss Helen Wade and Nat C. Wilson, left Washington for Charleston last night and are scheduled to arrive early today. The others are Miss Madge Bartlett and Glen Whistler, Orlando, Fla.; Miss Mary Weldon, Bryn Mawr, Pa.; Leo Wilhelm, Raleigh; Fritz Thompson, Athens, Ga., and Francis Simerville, Griffin, Ga.

Houses on both the Cooper and Ashley rivers, General Summerville said, were inundated by rising tides.

He said the Weather Bureau estimated that the wind velocity would continue between 50 and 60 miles an hour through the night, "making streets unsafe for travel."

Communication lines into Charleston failed at noon. At 3:30 o'clock an operator for the Amateur Radio Emergency Corps at Charlotte, N. C., picked up a message from Charleston saying a 75-mile wind was whipping the city.

Trees Uprooted.

The highest wind to hit Savannah was estimated at 68 to 70 miles per hour.

Torrential rains accompanied the high winds. Thousands of beautiful trees were uprooted in Savannah and other coastal cities. Plate glass windows were shattered.

From Savannah northward to Georgetown, 60 miles up the coast from Charleston, observers said the tides were highest on record.

The Coast Guard divisional headquarters at Jacksonville, Fla., dispatched two emergency communication trucks to the Savannah-Charleston storm area. The trucks house a complete power plant and short wave radio transmitting and receiving sets.

At Georgetown the authorities reported they evacuated every resident or vacationist from Pawley's island, beach resort 10 miles of the century. The tides were abnormally high. Cars were stalled in the streets by high water. The water crept into some homes. Many beautiful ancient trees were blown down.

Although some parts of the city presented a picture of desolation, there were no known casualties. There was an unconfirmed report that two persons were electrocuted by a high tension electric wire which had fallen. A taxicab driver was injured in a wreck while driving in the storm.

Between Charleston and St. George the highways were strewn with fallen trees. Traffic was heavy as vacationists sought to get to some place where they could communicate with relatives in other parts of the state.

Communication lines went down about noon and they had not been restored late last night. It was expected that it would be tomorrow at least before power facilities could be repaired.

Vacationists Flee.

Forewarned, the vacationists and weekend visitors evacuated the Isle of Palms, Sullivan's Island, Folly Beach, and other beach resorts near here, swarming into hotels and refugee centers. It was believed that everyone got away safely.

At one time there was such an exodus from the resorts that the Cooper river toll bridge ceased charging tolls. Two small docks near the Ashley river bridge were reported to have been badly damaged.

General Charles P. Summerville, chairman of the Charleston Red Cross, reported it was impossible to estimate the homeless immediately, but that 400 were being given refuge in two centers and other homeless refugees were being taken care of in private homes.

The Red Cross said that eight of its disaster relief experts were en route to Charleston and Savannah from the Washington office and regional offices near the stricken area.

Communication lines into Charleston failed at noon. At 3:30 o'clock an operator for the Amateur Radio Emergency Corps at Charlotte, N. C., picked up a message from Charleston saying a 75-mile wind was whipping the city.

Trees Uprooted.

The highest wind to hit Savannah was estimated at 68 to 70 miles per hour.

Torrential rains accompanied the high winds. Thousands of beautiful trees were uprooted in Savannah and other coastal cities. Plate glass windows were shattered.

From Savannah northward to Georgetown, 60 miles up the coast from Charleston, observers said the tides were highest on record.

The Coast Guard divisional headquarters at Jacksonville, Fla., dispatched two emergency communication trucks to the Savannah-Charleston storm area. The trucks house a complete power plant and short wave radio transmitting and receiving sets.

At Georgetown the authorities reported they evacuated every resident or vacationist from Pawley's island, beach resort 10 miles of the century. The tides were abnormally high. Cars were stalled in the streets by high water. The water crept into some homes. Many beautiful ancient trees were blown down.

Although some parts of the city presented a picture of desolation, there were no known casualties. There was an unconfirmed report that two persons were electrocuted by a high tension electric wire which had fallen. A taxicab driver was injured in a wreck while driving in the storm.

Between Charleston and St. George the highways were strewn with fallen trees. Traffic was heavy as vacationists sought to get to some place where they could communicate with relatives in other parts of the state.

Communication lines went down about noon and they had not been restored late last night. It was expected that it would be tomorrow at least before power facilities could be repaired.

State Police Called to Evict Flood Victims

Evacuation Ordered After Many Louisianians Refuse to Leave.

LAFAYETTE, La., Aug. 11.—(AP) Immediate evacuation of the 13,000 residents and refugees of the flood-stricken city of Crowley was ordered tonight by state authorities after health officers reported its water system was fouled with the threat of an epidemic increasing hourly.

Medical supplies and scores of physicians and nurses were sent into the vast inundated flatlands southwest of here after reports of typhoid and diphtheria cases came from the flooded zone.

Steve Alford, superintendent of state police, went to Crowley, capital of the southwestern Louisiana rice belt, with 40 state troopers to enforce the evacuation order after many residents in the city 20 miles from here refused to leave.

The state police were instructed particularly to watch for looting, after Governor Sam Jones, who made a tour of the stricken area today, received an appeal from John G. Neelis, bank president at the nearby town of Gueydan, to send National Guardsmen to prevent pillaging.

"Area must be placed under martial law," Neelis informed the Governor, "and vaccine by plane. Drop at Bank of Gueydan building doctor's office. All of town under six feet of water for past 60 hours. All homes under four feet of water."

G. T. Owen, executive counsel to the Governor, said at Baton Rouge that Coast Guard planes had delivered vaccine to Gueydan and that food and drinking water had been started to the beleaguered town by boat.

Governor Jones said here after an inspection of the flood area, where an estimated 20,000 persons have been marooned or forced to evacuate, that the American Red Cross and state agencies are bending every effort to save lives and prevent the threat of an epidemic.

An estimated 75,000 head of cattle and horses and thousands of other livestock has been lost or are in danger of starvation while crop damages are estimated in the millions of dollars.

from here. Giant waves ate away sand dunes and flooded part of the island.

On Sullivan's island, near Charleston, the Coast Guard went from house to house, warning the beach cottagers to leave the island immediately for the mainland.

The last dispatch received by the Associated Press before communication lines went down was at midday. It said gigantic waves were breaking on the city's famed Battery and that throughout the historic old city trees were falling on every hand. Power was off and hotels were overflowing with refugees.

A high wind that by late afternoon reached a velocity of about 45 miles an hour whipped giant waves before it and caused a heavy exodus of vacationists from Myrtle Beach, S. C.

Residents and guests of ocean-front cottages hastily packed a few belongings, upon warnings from the State Highway Patrol and the Coast Guard, and started trekking to safer places, some of them to Marion, Conway, Mullins and Florence, farther inland.

There were no reports of casualties and property damage was believed slight.

The tide, one of the highest in the memory of the oldest residents, lashed madly at the Strand and in some instances swept into the yards of homes.

The road to Marion and inland towns was heavy with fleeing traffic. Yet some stout-hearted persons were heading toward the beach, eager to get a glimpse of the storm.

Unidentified Man Is Fatally Shot

An unidentified white man, found lying beside a road in section 11 of Westview cemetery where pistol wounds in the head, died at Grady hospital early yesterday.

The body was taken to the morgue at Grady to await identification. Fulton County Patrolmen Vinson and Holland and City Detective C. L. Taylor are investigating.

The man was dressed in a brown suit. A straw hat with a green band was found near-by. $5.95 was found in the pockets. He weighed 150 pounds and age was set at approximately 55 years.

Millen Dark, Wind Damage Is Heavy

MILLEN, Ga., Aug. 11.—This town lay in total darkness here tonight as a high wind, accompanied by a driving rain swept through here at 7 o'clock, uprooting trees and damaging power lines and roofs of many houses.

Chief of Police Cary Averett said no one was injured, although streets in the town are strewn with uprooted trees.

Woman Saves Man From Well After Co-Workers Refuse Aid

CARROLLTON, Ga., Aug. 11.—Rudy Key, of near Bowdon Junction, was alive today because a frail, 45-year-old woman entered a well where he had been overcome by gas and rescued him after several of his co-workers declined to go to his aid.

Mrs. Minnie Kugler, wife of E. M. Kugler, went into the well at Key's home where he had been digging and blasting and tied a rope around his body. Two minutes later he was raised to the surface.

Key's condition was described as serious by doctors who said he would not have survived effects of the gas had he been left in the well five minutes longer.

Dr. H. J. Goodwyn, Carrollton physician, said he was ready to join a movement to apply for a Carnegie medal for Mrs. Kugler.

Florida Station Tells Savannah Is Evacuated Of Fire in City

Round-About Alarm Is Made a Necessity by Storm.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 10.—(AP) It was a radio call from Lake Worth, Fla., that sent the Savannah fire department to answer a call during the storm this afternoon.

Telephone and electric lines were felled by the wind simultaneously, cutting off communications and setting afire rosin stores at terminals on the edge of the city.

The radio operator of the steamship Camor, moored at the terminals, was informed of the emergency and attempted to raise the Savannah Radiomarine station to transmit the alarm to fire headquarters.

Failing in that, he called the station in Lake Worth, Lake Worth operator called Savannah, the Savannah station called the fire department by phone, and the apparatus had the threatening blaze under control within half an hour.

"A majority on the island were not unduly alarmed. Everyone got in their automobiles between 1, 2 and 3 o'clock this morning, drove across the causeways to the mainland, and remained in their cars waiting to see what would happen."

"At daybreak there was no great sign of a storm and many returned to the island."

"At 11 o'clock this morning an official report came to the island, and each home was warned of the storm and the people told to leave the island. Immediately everyone prepared to leave, except a few who live on the island the year round. However, a little later, they too began leaving."

"I left at 11:30 this morning, among the last to leave. I looked up and down the beach and saw no cars standing around the cottages."

"The one thing that made it particularly inconvenient was the fact that the full force of the wind was expected to come at high tide. This was alarming, because when there is high tide and an accompanying wind, the high water is kept from receding, and when the next tide comes in it pushes far inland."

"I saw no panic, no accidents."

"I was unable to drive but part of the 14 miles to the power house, he said, and spent much of the time carrying his transmitter in wheelbarrows and carts, and lifting it over fallen trees and poles. It was set up in the station near a portable generator which supplied the only electric illumination in the city."

He was unable to estimate the number of homeless in Charleston, but said a government housing project across the street had been leveled. He believed about 300 persons lived in the project, and said he thought they were all safe.

Downtown hotels were filled to capacity. One hotel lost part of its roof during the blow, but was pressed into service for the emergency

Crackers Score Five in Ninth To Wipe Out Pels, 9-2, in Series Final

BY JACK TROY

Reverse NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 11.—Louisiana State University, in the midst of a program of retrenchment, has gone somewhat to extremes.

Used to be L. S. U. was one of the most lavish universities in America. Anything went.

When the football teams went off on big trips, they took the student body and band along. It was a proposition of sparing no expense.

But times have changed. And so have administrations. Retrenchment has fallen upon L. S. U. It is not, according to things you hear, something that has been ordered. The chief reason seems to be to curvy favor with the new bosses.

And so, in cutting down, they have done something that amounts almost to letting the head football coach go and putting the frosh coach in charge.

They have fired the director of publicity.

Sam Jones today is Governor of Louisiana because of publicity. Not publicity about him, but publicity about the former administration. It was not favorable publicity, but nevertheless it aided in making a change.

The Long administration became a fabulous one through publicity. Also it was torn down through publicity.

L. S. U.'s football went a long way because of publicity.

And now, in a move that should demand a lot of explanation, they have abolished a post that may be as important as the head coaching job. In fact, it may be more important.

Al Smith did a great job for the school. He got the school's doings printed in the papers. He kept them in front of the reading public.

Big Difference It makes a difference to visit L. S. U. and find Al Smith gone—a big difference. Bernie Moore, who is accustomed to it by now, is on another spot.

Bernie does not have rosters showing too much about the L. S. U. team and, besides, he is busy. Red Heard also is busy. And that is natural. They are supposed to be busy.

The director of publicity handles visitors at all worthwhile colleges and relieves the other athletic officials of the details. They are called on largely for interviews or maybe for lunch.

But L. S. U., always different, has gone in for something radical again. Apparently, the school is going to try to prove that publicity isn't, after all, nearly what it is cracked up to be.

Well, it's their funeral.

No Worries Here Speaking of directors of publicity, Tulane has one of the best in the country. He also is one of the best broken field runners. If Tulane ever runs short of material, the Wave can enlist the services of Horace Renegar.

There was a time when Horace preferred the lounge, but here of late he is insistent upon sprinting blocks and even reversing his field to give one a first-hand look at Tulane, its Sugar Bowl, beautiful air-conditioned auditorium, and so on. And so forth.

Mr. Renegar truly is in shape. And so, by the way, is Tulane. I do not necessarily speak of football or the players. It's a great school and is growing greater.

Ferdinand's Corner Jasper Donaldson, Cracker secretary, thinks it is strange that the Huey Long bridge, representing one of the world's greatest engineering feats, lists the names of all the builders—except the engineer, himself. . . . The politicians didn't miss taking credit. . . . Henry Vance, Birmingham Age-Herald, thinks Jim Farley is dumb. . . . "He quit a winning team and goes to the Yankees," quips Henry. . . . By the way, Luman Harris, a graduate of the Birmingham sandlot program, was presented a hat by Sunny Jim Downey, head of the program, the other evening. . . . Leaving out Florida, Vanderbilt and Sewanee, the Southeastern Conference appears, from this vantage point, to have ten unusually good football teams in the making. . . . That's right—Tulane, Tennessee, Tech, Alabama, both Mississippi, Georgia, Kentucky, Auburn and L. S. U. . . . There are going to be some mighty good football games 'most every Saturday. . . . Nothing disparaging is meant in connection with Florida, Vandy and Sewanee. . . . The first two are rebuilding. . . . Sewanee, with a small roster, is playing only one conference game. . . . L. C. Warren, Tom Smith and G. D. McLendon decided the Crackers had gone bad enough. . . . so they hopped in Warren's private plane and flew here for the second game of the New Orleans series. . . . The Crackers snapped out of the losing streak. . . . Maybe the flying fans are psychic. . . . Regardless, however, they're real fans.

Bobby Riggs Halts McNeill To Win 4th Straight Title

Champion Disposes of Oklahoma Star in Four Sets To Retain Eastern Crown.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Bobby Riggs won the Eastern Grass Court championship for the fourth successive year today when he defeated Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5, 6-4.

After a division of the first two sets, McNeill punched out a 5-0 advantage in the third and against service in the sixth game, he reached three set points. But Riggs, who has been in that predicament before, forced three errors from McNeill to win the game and set the stage for another of his characteristic uphill rallies.

All sorts of superb strokes streamed off his racket as he won the next six successive games, holding McNeill to one earned point in that span, and limiting his own errors to a minimum. When he finally tucked the set away at 7-5, the usually decorous tennis crowd went mad. The final set after a ten-minute intermission was distinctly an anti-climax.

Riggs was terrific. His short, churning legs carried him rapidly over all the turf. He made winning returns of shots that should have been played defensively. He stormed to the net early in every exchange.

In the third set McNeill fought stubbornly until Bobby drew to 3-5. Then Don slumped as the last four games of the stirring streak went to Bobby as if he had paid for them.

Riggs quickly achieved a 5-1 advantage in the last set, and then McNeill became the tiger. He broke Bobby's delivery twice, held his own service once and drew to within 5-4. He needed but one point to square it at 5-5. But that was the point Bobby decided he was going to win himself. He did, and with it the match.

The women's doubles finals went to Alice Marble and Sarah Paulfrey, who defeated Mary Hardwick and Valerie Scott, of England, 6-4, 6-3.

Don McNeill and Frank Parker, the country's top-ranking team, was defeated in the finals of the men's doubles by Gardner Mulloy, of Miami, and Henry Prusoff, of Seattle. The scores were 6-3, 6-4, 19-21, 6-2. This match was finished in almost complete darkness.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Charlie Varble and Byron Alexander earned their pay as umpires in the Georgia-Florida League last week. They worked four successive double-headers, finishing with a three-hour engagement between Waycross and Albany.

Waycross quickly achieved a 5-1 advantage in the last set, and then McNeill became the tiger. He broke Bobby's delivery twice, held his own service once and drew to within 5-4. ## Jack Slayton Beats Castillo In S. E. Finals

Columbus Boy Shoots Four Under Par at Columbus.

By AL SHARP, Constitution Golf Writer.

COUNTRY CLUB OF COLUMBUS, Columbus, Ga., Aug. 11.—Wing Jack Slayton, 26-year-old Columbus sharpshooter, shot a sensational 4-under-par score here this afternoon as he beat Henry Castillo, former Louisiana State University star from Tampa, 2 and 1, in the finals of the South-eastern amateur golf tournament.

Slayton won a net of six birdies around his harder hitting opponent before Castillo went down under a barrage of three birdies on four holes, the last two sealing the victory.

It was the greatest golf match most of the 500 fans had ever seen, and few came close to remembering a more exciting title battle with such low scoring.

Both players were 2 under par and all square through nine holes. They remained all square through the 13th hole, halving the next four in pars.

45-FOOT PUTT. Then Slayton sank a 45-foot putt for a 4 under to go 1 up. Castillo came right back to take the 15th when Jack's second shot found the rough.

Slayton knocked a string-straight iron to the 137-yard 16th hole, the ball stopping three feet short of the cup. Slayton sank the putt after Castillo chipped up and got his par 3.

Then back he came with a birdie 4 at the 17th hole, sinking a 2 1-2-foot putt for the victory after Henry missed a 15-footer which would have kept the match alive.

The match was full of brilliant and beautiful shots. One, played by Castillo, comes close to being the finest you may expect to see.

It happened at the 13th hole. Henry was in the rough on his drive, but came out well with a wood almost hole high and 50 yards to the left of the pin.

The ball stopped on a downhill lie. Two saplings were between it and the pin. There was a large trap to get over. Castillo decided to use a seven-iron instead of trying to pitch over the trap. He figured a nine-iron would not work because of the lie.

HIT IT FIRMLY. Playing the shot just to one side of the saplings, Castillo hit the ball firmly. It hit in front of the trap and bounced onto the green, going 12 feet past the cup.

Slayton came up with a great recovery on the second hole. He blasted from a trap within three feet of the cup to bet a par for a half.

Castillo played a great shot under pressure at the eighth. Shooting first, Slayton laid his approach within 4 1-2 feet of the cup. Castillo, with a foot inside of him and they halved the hole with birdies as they had done at No. 1.

Castillo advanced to the finals with a 4-and-3 victory over his former L. S. U. teammate, Dale Morey, of Martinsville, Ind. Henry was over par at that morning match.

Slayton beat Sonny Swift, of Columbus, in the semifinals, 3 and 1, closing the tilt with an eagle 3 on the 17th hole, where he chipped into the cup. He was even par for that match.

Frank Lumpkin Sr., club president, presented the prizes after the final matches. Results of other flights included:

Champion's Consolation—Jack Killen, of Shreveport, defeated Dixon Harp, of Columbus, 5 and 4.

Second Flight—Gusby Jordan, Columbus, defeated George Kyle, Columbus, 1 up.

Consolation—Sebe Thomas, Alexander City, defeated John B. McManis, Greensboro, N. C., 2 and 1.

Second Flight—Ben Parham, Columbus, defeated John Wadden, Columbus, 2 and 1.

Consolation—J. S. Kirven Sr., Columbus, defeated Jack Ellis, Columbus, 3 and 1.

Third Flight—Elliot Waddell, Columbus, defeated Ken Holland, Columbus, 3 and 1.

Consolation—Stokely Pound, Columbus, defeated Jim Forbus, Alexander City, 3 and 2.

Fourth Flight—Billy Faulkner, Columbus, defeated W. E. Hiers, Columbus, 3 and 2.

Consolation—Sonny Metcalf, Columbus, defeated John Brim, Columbus, 4 and 3.

Fifth Flight—Louis Lambeth, Alexander City, defeated Tom Johnson, Columbus, 4 and 2.

Consolation—Bobby Ford, Panama City, defeated Wayne Patterson, Columbus, 1 up (19 holes).

Shortstop Ray Honeycutt's error that kept the Chicks from retiring the side in the seventh was fatal. It filled the bases and set the stage for Michael Rocco to knock a home run. A Memphis threat in the eighth got two runs but fell short of a rally.

George Jeffcoat, with good fielding support, shut out Memphis on seven hits in the second game. Only in the fifth, when they got two, did the Chicks bunch more than one hit in a frame. A double, an error and three singles in the fourth accounted for Nashville's runs.

Willingham-Tift Company Pioneers in FHA Homes in the South

Handled 1,200 FHA Homes in Six Years Here

Special Work of Roy D. Warren for Willingham-Tift.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

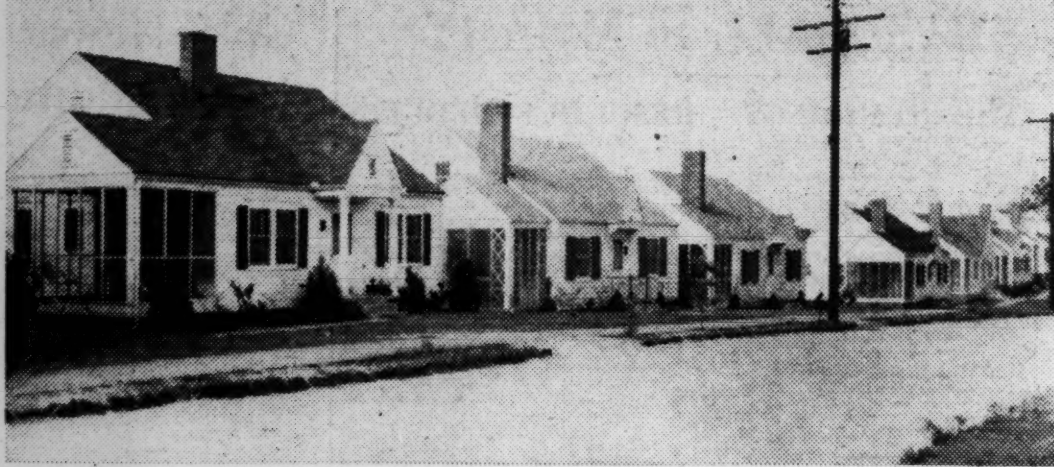

Six years ago, just when the federal government inaugurated its timely and liberal FHA mortgage loan plan, the first home under this plan was erected in Atlanta—and records will probably show it was the first FHA home in the south.

All details for erecting this home, and especially the matter of securing the FHA loan, was handled for F. O. Bishop, a city policeman, by Roy D. Warren, of the Willingham-Tift Lumber Company. And so it was that the first FHA home to be built here—a six-room brick veneer—was erected on Manford road, in Capitol View Manor.

Since that time hundreds—yes, thousands—of homes under the FHA plan have been erected here, and just as the large and well-known building material concern were pioneers, so it is still a leader in assisting hundreds in securing homes under the easy and well-adopted plan of the federal government.

During the past six years the Willingham-Tift Company has given its aid in erecting 1,200 homes in and around Atlanta. This has been done largely—almost altogether—through the efforts of Roy Warren, whose long connection with the building material concern, and his study and knowledge of federal requirements has been of great aid to seekers of new homes.

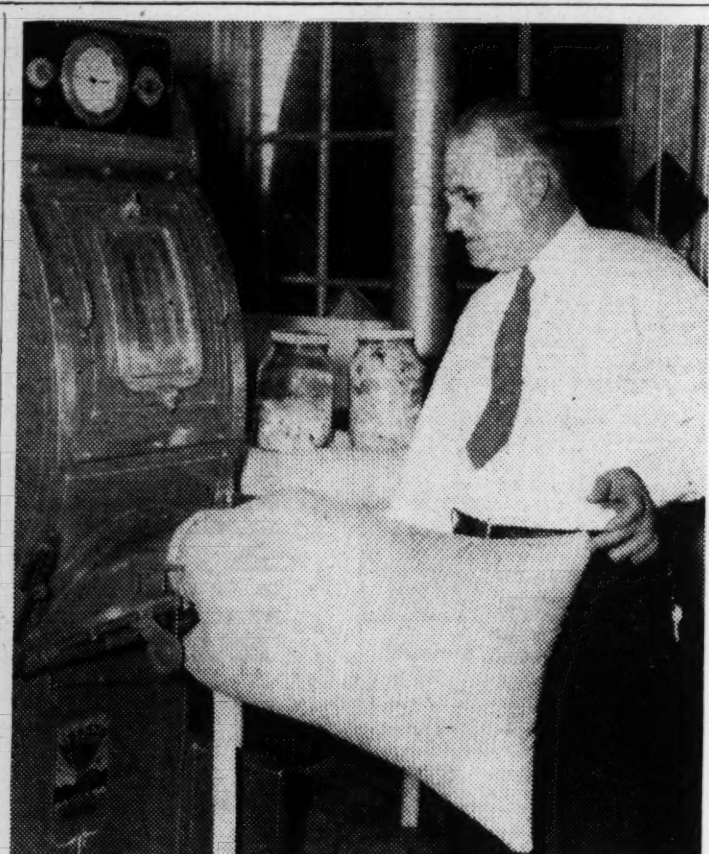

The work of Mr. Warren or the lumber company is not that of building. The function of the company, through Mr. Warren, is to help homeseekers find the right location, select an architect and a builder, if the prospect desires them to do so, and last, but not least, assist in securing a satisfactory FHA loan.

FHA HOMES—Here is a row of FHA typical homes in the low-price field built on Spring street in Semmes Park, East Point, by four independent local general contractors, through the Willingham-Tift Lumber Company, they being J. R. Bryan & Sons, R. O. Barnette & Son, A. J. Haley and T. B. Clonts. All are built under the requirements of the FHA.

Mr. Warren maintains an up-town office at 714 Volunteer building, where he can be advised with from 2 o'clock every afternoon until 6 o'clock. He has on display 1,000 blueprints and various designs for homes. They are not for sale. They are not used for the building of homes, but merely are on display as the designs of hundreds of homes built in Atlanta, with Mr. Warren's advice and assistance, so that prospects can better visualize the type of home desired. When one is selected, the prospect can be taken out to inspect the already-built home, from the design selected. If he, or she, is then pleased, an architect and contractor take up the work after the location is selected, still under the supervision of Mr. Warren, and at which time he begins the job of securing the FHA commitment—a most useful and accommodating thing for a home-building prospect.

In addition to Mr. Warren's work, Robert Allen, who has had much experience in similar work, is continually at the office and plant of the lumber company, on Murphy avenue, where he is able to render just the same type of assistance to prospective home builders. Mr. Warren is full of enthusiasm about home building in the future. He is a licensed real estate loan broker. He has made a study of home location and home building needs, and has been most successful in securing FHA loan commitments. To those contemplating building a home, it will prove more than worth while to make a call on Roy Warren at his Volunteer building office and talk with him about it.

FEATHER CLEANING—Loyd Hanes, manager of May's Laundry, at 520 West Peachtree St., N. W., demonstrates Gold Shield's exclusive feather-cleaning process, where feathers from pillows are sterilized, cleaned and revitalized, and then blown back into their ticks. Note the two glass jars in the background. Each has in it exactly the same weight of feathers taken from the same pillow. The feathers in the full jar have been cleaned. Their lightness and fluffiness fills the jar, while the uncleaned feathers in the other jar lie matted and heavy, filling the jar only half full. Other laundries and cleaners in the Gold Shield group are American, Capital City, Decatur, Excelsior, Guthman, Trio, Piedmont and Troy.

Clean Pillows Are Vital for Health's Sake

Gold Shield Process Sterilizes and Revitalizes Feathers.

A pillow is an intimate thing. As a weary head lies upon it only a thin pillow case separates the tick from mouth and nose. Germs and bacteria can flourish upon the tick and among the feathers inside. On hot summer nights perspiration soaks in and leaves its unpleasant odor. Medicines and beverages are spilled upon that pillow as folks lie ill. Colds leave their germs to reinfect the same person or some other person who uses the pillow.

Therefore, every home has its pillow problem—a problem which was not satisfactorily solved until Gold Shield Launderers and Cleaners recently made available to the general public their exclusive process of cleaning and sterilizing feather pillows.

Heretofore there were two ways of trying to renovate a pillow. One was to put the pillow, along with a lot of others, into a washing machine with plenty of soap and water. The other was to empty the feathers from the ticks into thin cotton bags, placing the bags in a washing machine. Such processes left much to be desired. In the first place it is well-nigh impossible to circulate water freely through and around feathers which are confined within a tick or a bag. In the second place soapy water is injurious to feathers and not easily rinsed out of them. In the third place a wet mass of feathers, confined within a tick or a bag, cannot be dried with speed enough to keep them sweet and fresh-smelling. In the fourth place the ticks or bags of feathers would frequently burst in the washing machines . . . and that spelled trouble.

All of that is history now. Gold Shield, with the exclusive right to use the process in Atlanta, cleans and sterilizes pillows by an entirely efficacious method, licensed under the rules and regulations of the State Department of Health. And each pillow bears a tag certifying such to be the case. This pillow-cleaning process is available to all Atlanta and its suburbs through the Gold Shield group of laundries and cleaners, composed of American, Capital City, Decatur, Excelsior, Guthman, May's, Trio, Piedmont and Troy.

For health's sake pillows need sterilization every so often . . . for stale, soiled, and worn pillows are vitalized into softness and freshness every so often. Every pillow should be cleaned at least once a year; oftener if there is illness in the family.

Gold Shield cleans each pillow separately. Feathers are drawn from the tick by suction. They go into the drum of a tightly closed, ingeniously designed cleaning machine, where they are kept in constant motion so that each individual feather is cleaned, sterilized and recured by a combination of filtered, fresh air and purifying steam. In the meantime the tick is laundered and sterilized. Then the feathers are blown back into the tick. The feathers from one pillow never come into contact with feathers from another pillow. Therefore, their own feathers—and all their own—are returned to the pillows. However, when her cleaned pillows come home from Gold Shield it is not unusual for some housewife to say: "Why, these don't look like my pillows! They seem so much springier and plumper than mine were."

Every day more housewives are coming to realize the importance of clean pillows for health's sake and they know that a comfortable pillow helps to induce restful, refreshing sleep. Therefore, they are having their pillows cleaned, been cleaned, sterilized and revitalized by Gold Shield. Some of them can spare only one pillow at a time away from home, so that is the way they are sending them—one by one—until all in the house have been cleaned.

500 Per Minute Printing Press For Williams

New Lithograph Press in Rhodes Building Plant Is a Wonder.

The new lithograph press recently installed by the Williams Printing Company, top floor Rhodes building annex, 78 Marietta street, opposite Georgia Power Company, is the first press of this type ever installed in the south, and is said to be five times as fast as the speediest commercial press in Atlanta. To watch this press turn out its printed sheets with such lightning-like rapidity makes one almost dizzy and leaves one gasping with astonishment at the perfection of the completed job.

Mr. Williams has recently moved his entire plant from the third floor to the sixth floor of the Rhodes building annex. His volume of business has acquired such proportions that more room was needed. His printing plant now occupies the entire sixth floor, where eight presses—large and small—are constantly producing the highest type of printing for its many scores of patrons. In the additional 3,500 square feet of floor space the company has installed several new and modern pieces of printing machinery, and has added materially to its well-assorted stocks of type faces, and is proud that it numbers among its patrons some of the largest concerns in the city as well as the smaller companies.

However, it is the fast-whirling machine on which perfect lithograph work is produced that attracts one's attention. It is placed in a well-lighted, air-conditioned room, and is in charge of experts in this particular type of printing. Any job can be duplicated photographically and printed on this press, thereby saving the cost of cuts and a new set-up. The paper is fed into the press from a large roll, cut, and stacked in the same operation. The press produces 20,000 to 30,000 impressions per hour—nearly 500 per minute—with only about five minutes needed to change from one job to another. The new press will print 80 to 85 per cent of the type printing demanded by business concerns. It prints on all kinds of papers from onionskin to cardboard, and short-run plates can be used repeatedly, kept indefinitely, and filed away for reprints.

Tire Engineers on Ivy Street Operate Fine Recapping Shop

Harry H. Brooks and Paul L. Pruitt, operators of Tire Engineers, the south's finest recapping shop, announce the first six months of their being in business has brought them an increasing volume of business from customers looking for the best that can be bought in tread renewing and tire repairing.

They attribute their success of this shop to the fact that all departments are personally supervised by Harry H. Brooks, who is the original founder of the recapping process in this territory. There is no other shop equal to its size or to its modern equipment, which has the actual personal supervision of its owners.

Mileage has been phenomenal on tires that have been recapped in this modern shop, and in most cases have delivered more miles than the original new tread of the tire. This company strives at all times to turn out a recap that will actually outwear a tread of a new tire, and in doing this have to constantly be in the market for improved capping methods and have set up an experimental department to check different grades of rubbers and compounds to assure the motoring public that they are riding on a safe tire when it has been inspected and recapped in this modern shop. This firm holds several patents of revolutionary processes for saving and bringing back to life tires that would ordinarily be discarded as junk, giving these services to the motoring public without any extra charge, keeping in mind at all times that a tire is no safer than its actual condition when recapped. This company's accurate inspection machinery is the finest of any shop in the south. It is, in fact, in every way a Craft Shop. Every man employed is a craftsman in his own line.

Constant experiments of this one job to another. The new press will print 80 to 85 per cent of the type printing demanded by business concerns. It prints on all kinds of papers from onionskin to cardboard, and short-run plates can be used repeatedly, kept indefinitely, and filed away for reprints.

firm keeps them abreast of all changes that are brought about by the changes in new tires that are constantly being made by the manufacturers and that are placed upon the motorist's car when the car is bought new. They specialize in Rayon tires, Bibb H. R. Cord tires, and all premium grade tires of all manufacturers.

Harry H. Brooks and Paul L. Pruitt invite their many friends to visit their remodeled salesroom and recapping shop at 141 Ivy street. Their experience in the tire business covers a period of 25 years.

Three-in-One Lipstick Defies Superstition

No Stage Play For Paulette This Summer

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 11.—Paulette Goddard has decided every summer for the past three years to appear in summer stocks in the east. And every summer has remained in Hollywood. This year is no exception. And another movie has been added to her current schedule, "Air Raid," which was originally intended to co-star Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray. Paulette's leading man is Melvyn Douglas. The production begins following "Second Hush," in which Paulette is hot-potting it with Fred Astaire.

The story of "Air Raid" has been changed from its original plan of a murder mystery against a practice air-raid black-out—that was before September, 1939. The murder will now occur during an actual air-raid with Melvyn, a continental diplomat, accused of murder. He clears himself in the last reel, and also saves his country from Hitler-conceived conspiracy. It now seems as though Hollywood will not entirely abandon the European war movie material.

Jeffrey Lynn marries Miriam Hopkins in "The Lady with Red Hair." He enacts her first husband, Leslie Carter. This will be Miriam's first picture since "Virginia City," and she has already received her $50,000 for the chore. The time of Warner's settlement with her, Miriam promises, she would make another picture for the studio if and when they provided her with a suitable script. Production begins just as Lynn finishes in "Four Others."

"Frontier Doctor," which has been kicked around for quite while, now appears to be falling to the lap of Jimmy Stewart. It was first planned as a Cagney, then a Muni flicker. The story concerns a New England doctor who braves the perils of frontier life in Oregon. Jimmy's latest picture, "No Time for Comedy," is a preview this week. Advance reports are good.

Talking about Cagney, his next picture is "They Died With Their Boots On," with Jimmy as Wesley Archer, famous bad boy of Texas.

Paul Muni has come to roost at Twentieth Century-Fox, for whom stars in "Hudson Bay Company." This is a fairly amusing, because it was at Fox that Muni began—and almost ended—his career in 1928. It took him four years to get another movie chance—United Artists. Gene Hervey gets the second big part in her young career as Muni's leading lady in "Hudson Bay Company."

When "Topper Returns" is produced at the Roach studio, the most of Constance Bennett will be absent. The action of the new film will center around Roland Young and Billie Burke. Instead, Bonnie in person, will attempt to act in Columbia's "Passage West." (I wonder is this the former "Singapore") Pat O'Brien, who is a fugitive from a Warner contract, plays opposite Miss Bennett.

Remember "Thanks for the memory," in which Bob Hope was starred with Shirley Ross? Well, you may get the chance of other look at it. Paramount is planning to reissue the picture; so "Never Say Die" (Bob and Shirley). The reason is that exhibitors want more of Mr. Hope.

Universal big-shots must be eling rich because, according to port, they have just paid $200,000 for the screen rights to "Hell-poppin'." However, the purchase is less extravagant than it unds, and includes the acting ice tag for Olsen and Johnson.

It took a long time for Ray illand to get Claudette Colbert co-starring assignments. But partnership, begun in "Airing Love," is to continue with illand playing the leading male Claudette's "Skylark."

A near-future dancing assignment for George Raft is "Maid in avana," with Ann Sheridan as his lady love. But first George is in "South of Suez" with Gertrude Fitzgerald.

There's going to be a sequel to "When the altons Rode"—and I can't wait see it. This is one of the best westerners since "Stagecoach."

Masterpiece—Yours in Needlepoint

By ALICE BROOKS

Needlepoint—that's half a cross stitch—is enriched by this beautiful and famous Raphael Madonna, skillfully translated into needlework. Pattern 6774 contains a transfer pattern of a picture 9 1/2 x 1 1/4 inches. Materials needed: color yarn; illustrations of itches.

To obtain this pattern and ten cents in coin, Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Alice Faye not only matches the shade of her lipstick to her clothes, but uses a lipstick which protects, softens and keeps her lips smooth.

MY DAY: Memories in a Visit To a Former Home

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK.—This place seemed filled with Democrats yesterday afternoon, and even in the morning they began to arrive at Miss Nancy Cook's cottage; for she had arranged luncheon for a large group.

Every year or so, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr. and I tell the county chairman that we will each be glad to have a tea for the Democratic women.

This year, Mrs. Edward Conger, who is vice chairman for Dutchess county, included the women from the four neighboring counties, and told me she would have about 400. Yesterday morning, however, when Miss Thompson checked up, she found that it was more than likely that we would have 800. We could hardly be blamed for being a little appalled, because when you live in the country it is not quite so easy to go around the corner to buy extra food. However, by dint of collecting everything from everywhere, I hope that everyone who came got something to eat and drink. I ceased trying to make sure when I seemed completely surrounded by hands which I was trying to shake.

The President and Secretary Wallace came over for a few brief minutes, and I must say that the country seems the proper setting for these two men. They both look more natural and seem happier without hats and sitting on the back of a seat of a small car. They went off with a party to picnic in a distant spot, but I could not leave until late in the afternoon. Then the rest of us went to picnic at my old home, five miles above the village of Tivoli.

The house looks very much neglected, and for many years nobody has done much to the grounds except cut down some trees. Still, as we sat and ate our picnic supper, watching the sun go down behind the Catskill mountains, I could not help feeling a sense of beauty and peace. It may be said to return to the scenes of one's childhood and realize all the things that have happened in the intervening years to the people one loves; yet there is also something very sweet in remembering the good things which no sadness can wipe out.

For instance, into this house of adolescent life, with young aunts and uncles enjoying to the full a gay and fairly undisciplined existence I had with my brother after my mother's death. It was natural for my grandmother, already in the middle years of her life, to be willing to take in her eldest daughter's children. As I have grown older, however, I appreciate more and more the spirit which made those young aunts and uncles make us, as children, feel that our home was with them; that we had as much right to be there as they. There never was a question of what was mine and mine among us. That is something which makes for a deeper belief in the good of human nature and helps one through the rough spots all the rest of one's life.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, inclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to the Woman's Editor of The Constitution's Service Bureau, 1013 Thirteenth street, Washington, D. C., for a personal reply. Don't telephone; write as directed.

Q. When canning pears, how can discoloration be prevented?

A. Place the pared fruit in a solution made in the proportion of 2 tablespoons each of salt and vinegar to one gallon of water. Drain, and cook in boiling, medium syrup for 4 to 8 minutes, according to the size and firmness of the fruit. Pack the pears hot into containers and fill with boiling syrup.

Q. How often should a small baby be bathed in hot weather?

A. A sponge bath with tepid water may be given two or three times daily.

Q. How may raw cabbage be utilized in summertime meals?

A. Shredded fine it may be added to summer salads or used to make coleslaw. A simple dish may be made by seasoning either sweet or sour cream with vinegar, salt and sugar to taste and pouring it over finely shredded cabbage.

Match Case For Women Is Unique

By Lillian Mae.

Back in the days of the last World War there developed a very strong superstition against lighting three cigarettes on one match. Even though lights were scarce, the boys would forego a smoke before they would defy that superstition. And it is still one of the strongest of these things to be avoided. So much so, that one of the popular cartoonists pictured the President in the act of lighting his third cigarette on one match, and being warned by the party donkey that it was an ill omen.

Our friends in the cosmetic business are constantly seeking inspiration—inspiration for new, more useful, more practical and at the same time more attractive, items and packages. Well, this one just exactly hit the spot.

While every woman has been made conscious of the fact that she should have a "lipstick wardrobe"—meaning a different shade for each costume, there are a great many who do not feel that they can spend dollars so freely, and therefore, try to make one do the work of two or more.

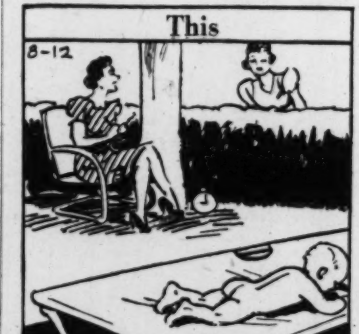

Well, here's the solution, in one of the most attractive items I've yet seen. It was my good fortune in New York a few days ago to meet at a party one of the young ladies connected with an old and dependable cosmetic house. After finishing her refreshments she pulled from her bag an article which looked for the world like a red match case—sandpaper for striking, and all. But, lo, and behold, when she lifted the flap, instead of matches, there were three lipstick cases—white with red tips to look the more like matches.

Naturally, I was intrigued, asked to see it and hear the story. And it was told to me as I have told it to you above. Only I was getting a private "peek preview," for the item had not been placed on the market yet. But today is the day. It is now in Atlanta and waiting for smart women. Instead of the price being three dollars—the price of the lipstick generally, the novel package sells for only one dollar.

Each lipstick is held firmly in its own groove, and just below is

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "I give baby his sun bath early in the morning before the sun gets too hot, and I let him stay in the sunshine long enough to get burned."

Mother: "I got busy with my work and left baby out in the sun too long and he got badly sunburned. I thought if a little sun was good, more would be better, but that isn't true."

Watch baby so that he gets his coat of tan gradually. Sunburn is dangerous.

Alcohol Alone Adds No Weight

By Ida Jean Kain

Men don't understand alcohol any better than they understand women, but many a man considers himself an authority on both subjects. This article may help to straighten you out on alcohol. It probably has a few surprises in it!

Alcohol does not increase your blood pressure, make you fat, give you cirrhosis of the liver—or even a strong breath! We learn from a perusal of "Alcohol, the Servant of Man," that the way to catch your blood pressure reassuringly low is to have it checked the morning after. Although there is a temporary increase when you take a drink, it's because alcohol acts as a depressant to the inhibitory nerve centers controlling the heartbeat and your heart beats faster and the blood pressure is raised. But the final result is dilation of the capillaries, which lowers the blood pressure instead of raising it.

If you don't have cirrhosis of the liver to start with, research shows that alcohol won't give it to you. Pure alcohol cannot be detected on the breath—the "whiff" is produced by the accompanying substances!

Strangely enough, a drink doesn't even warm you up. It causes a temporary sensation of warmth because it sends the blood into the skin, but heat is thrown off more rapidly than normal and the final effect is that it makes you colder!

Now, about alcohol and your weight. Alcohol is fast energy and it must be used up. It cannot be stored. Therefore, it cannot make you fat. But here's the catch: It spares the food calories—and they are converted into fat. The man who drinks and eats inevitably gains weight. But the man who doesn't eat feels his drinks more—and if he does it consistently, is in a fair way to developing polynuria. This is a vitamin deficiency disease and most hard drinkers have to think about it. Of course, it is really caused by not eating the right foods, rather than by drinking and teetotalers can get it, too!

The authors of this fascinating book are Walton Hall Smith, a chemist, and Ferdinand C. Helwig, an M. D. Their style is 100% proof of their statement and they give facts without taking the pleasure out of your scotch and soda.

If you are a business drinker, you will like their tips for keeping up with your associates and keeping your head. The trick, we're told, is to slow up the process of absorption. This can be done by dilution and by food. Dilution is the surest. Well diluted drinks do not hit you as fast or as hard. That means taking water with or immediately after the drink—not before!

Some foods are better buffers than others. The champions are whole milk, cream and butter, and they can be taken as long as an hour before drink and still act as deterrents to absorption.

Spacing well diluted drinks properly and calling it a night in time to get eight hours' sleep are the best preventive of a hang-over.

But if you are going to have a hangover, you have it the night before—even though you are not aware of it. And that is the time to start working on it. Before going to bed, take food, preferably milk, so that it can overtake some of your drinks.

When you get up, take a sedative—not an eye-opener—to ease the pain. An eye-opener merely postpones the reckoning. The hang-over is caused by the accumulation of lactic acid which has been induced by alcohol and rest and time are the only cures.

A tiny mirror so that you need no other to apply your lipstick properly. Each is a different shade, of course, so that you may have in your handbag ready for use at any hour of the day or night and with any costume or color. Just the right one. The three constitute our fashion-right lipstick wardrobe.

But aside from the unique package and the three shades, you have the best quality in the product. There is a special pomade in the lipstick which protects, softens and keeps smooth your lips.

Better phone me now and be one of the first to defy superstition and have in your own handbag the novel match-case lipstick wardrobe. And you are worried about something different for party favors or prizes, wouldn't you just love to present your guests with this useful novelty? I'll be waiting to tell you the name and where it may be purchased. If you do not live in Atlanta, write me inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

THESE WOMEN -- By d'Alessio

"Go ahead—NOW say something about my dropping ashes on the rug!"

Comradeship Should Exist Between Parent and Child

The other day at a public gathering I sat behind a typical American family of moderate means and as I watched the little group I said to myself: there's the nearest approach to heaven on earth. Papa was tall and slender, greying slightly at the temples but youthful in appearance. Mama was pretty and plumpish and in between sat four children. The little boys looked as though the cat had licked them and the girls were quite trim and proper until they got tired and began to wriggle and twist and look inquiringly at their parents saying eloquently: "How much longer?" Papa and mama exchanged sympathetic glances now and then when the giggling assumed proportions and quiet had to be restored by one or the other.

Does anybody think this sort of family life is a miracle of chance? Does anybody think this couple got married, lived gaily, had plenty, brought four children into the world and let them grow up in irresponsible fashion. No this isn't a miracle of chance nor even good luck. This sort of a picture is painted by a couple of straight thinking, square shooting, right liv-

By daylight or starlight—a classically styled shirtwaist is always "the smartest dress there!" This attractive Lillian Mae style, Pattern 4516, is no exception. The front-paneled skirt may be in long or street length, with two square patch pockets to add to its trim style. The notched collar, nice in matching fabric, would look striking in contrast too. Notice the new bloused silhouette given by darted fullness below the yokes at front and back. Have the sleeves short, or long with neat wristbands. Wouldn't the belt buckle be decorative in a shade to match the buttons of the bodice opening? Make this becoming frock in both versions.

Pattern 4516 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16, street-length dress, takes 3 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric.

New Ideas Make Your Party A Success

A shower for the baby-to-be with a stork as the master of ceremonies!

It's clever, of course, but cleverness comes easy when you have party ideas all worked out for you. Be it a shower, an announcement or an anniversary—you shine as hostess.

The stork shower, for instance, is the climax of a luncheon party. Your table centerpiece is a pink "brick" chimney, which holds the shower gifts, and it's flanked by a stork ready to carry sir baby down the chimney.

Actually the chimney is a big square box, with "cornice" of white paper and bricks of pink paper checked off with red crayon.

The stork you cut from heavy cardboard. Cover the body with white paper, legs and bill with red paper and mark eyes and tail feathers with black crayon. Then paste stork to side of chimney and, with Scotch tape, fasten to his bill a cellophane "shawl" holding a rubber baby doll about 6 inches long.

For adorable favors, make storks of white and red gumdrops and red toothpicks, fasten to place cards.

Have you racked your brain for an amusing birthday party idea? A Monte Carlo "gambling" party will delight your guests. Or would you like a clever way to announce your own engagement?

Our 40-page booklet, SHOWERS, ANNOUNCEMENTS AND ANNIVERSARIES, is packed with delightful party ideas for engagement announcements; for showers for brides, grooms and babies; for wedding anniversaries and birthday parties. Includes games, entertainment. Tells how to make placecards, table decorations. Has menus, too.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet. SHOWERS, ANNOUNCEMENTS & ANNIVERSARIES, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

We'd certainly hate to have to make peace with somebody who didn't even speak the same language we did.

Today's Charm Tip
We've heard fun poked at "The Great American Gesture." Let's hope you're not a girdle hitcher, for nothing is more ruinous to a charming picture.

WHAT SHALL WE DO AT THE PICNIC?

Eat, of course. But we can't eat all the time. Suppose we arrange for some games? Not a bad suggestion. But what games? Know any new ones? No, but I have a grand hunch: Let's send to The Constitution Service Bureau at Washington, D. C., for "The Book of Games." That's sure to have a great, interesting suggestion, and the picnic will be a great success.

Just mail the coupon below, filled in carefully, to the Service Bureau. Enclose ten cents to cover postage and other costs. Be sure the address is correct, 1013 Thirteenth St., Washington, D. C.

Florence and John McCord Inherit Family Heirlooms

• • • FORTUNATE, indeed, are Florence and John McCord, who married recently in Wilson, N. C., in that they will inherit all of the household effects belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Elie McCord, of Atlanta, who are John's parents. The newlyweds are visiting the McCords in Atlanta and John and his bride are enjoying a gay round of parties given in their honor.

A Chippendale mahogany sofa upholstered in gold brocade, and two antique mahogany chairs, one covered in gold brocade, and the other in red velvet, match the sofa and will grace the living room.

Eight mahogany Chippendale chairs with seats upholstered in blue and peach striped silk, match the antique mahogany dining room table of Sheraton design, which belonged to the late Miss Anne Simms, John's great-aunt. She resided in Jonesboro when the Yankees marched through that section of Georgia during the War Between the States.

The boudoir will be furnished with a mahogany Chippendale set of furniture, and destined to have a place in this room is the rosewood serving table, owned by John's paternal great-grandmother who lived in West Point, Miss.

Their wedding gift from John's parents is a chest of heavy flat silver, which was given them on their wedding day nearly 25 years ago. Florence's engagement ring is of nine sparkling diamonds which were set in a bracelet when John's father gave it to Mrs. McCord on one of their anniversaries.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Feted at Parties

Parties continue to be given for Mr. and Mrs. James D. Henry, who leave at an early date for Pittsburgh, Pa., to reside. This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Carter Jr. entertain at a cocktail party at their home on Peachtree Way for Mr. and Mrs. Henry.

This evening members of the Tuxedo Hunt Club, of which Mr. and Mrs. Henry are members, entertain at a fancy dress party in their honor, the affair to take place at the club in Tuxedo Park.

On Wednesday a group of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry will form a party motoring to Monticello, where Mrs. Bessie Pope Hempstead entertains at a luncheon at her plantation for the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry were honor guests Saturday at the luncheon given by General Van Horn Moseley at the Mirador room of the Capital City Club, a small group of friends being invited.

Page-Hamer Plans And Social Affairs Attract Interest

Miss Ida Lee Page, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Norwood Page, will become the bride of William Hubert Hamer at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's parents, 485 Whiteford avenue. Rev. E. C. Few, pastor of the Druid Hills Methodist church, will perform the ceremony. Mrs. Stacy Turner, of Thomson, cousin of the bride-elect, and Billy Jack Wann, of Scottsboro, Ala., will render a musical program.

Miss Maida Baker, of Tampa, Fla., will attend the bride-elect as maid of honor, and her two bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Ruth Betts, also of Tampa, and Miss Genevieve Camp.

Mr. Hamer has chosen for his best man Edward H. Taylor, of Florence, Ala., and his groomsmen will be Earl Norwood Page Jr., brother of the bride-elect, and Jack Tipton, of Knoxville, Tenn.

Following the ceremony, an informal reception will be held at the residence, after which the couple will leave by motor for a honeymoon to North Carolina.

Among the social events honoring the bride-elect was the garden party and miscellaneous shower given Saturday afternoon by Miss Genevieve Camp at the home of her aunt, Mrs. R. W. Vost, 2406 Peachtree road.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Mary Uelton and Mrs. W. A. Gregg. Guests were Misses Dorothy Lovett, Edith and Ruth Banks, Ruth Gardner, Agnes Page, Ethel Hamble, Alice Bentley, Sybil Jay, Kathryn Uelton, Helen Fulbright, Betty Milam, Irene Holt, Carol Latham, Gloria Warren, Elise Terry, Peggy Gregg, Jane Gunter, Barbara Fulbright, Margie Sauls, Sue Robinson, Mildred Harris, Jane Palmer, Mesdames Laura Dickey, Frank Boykin, Mary Uelton, Paul Dent, W. A. Gregg, A. B. Heath, E. C. Camp, Earl Norwood Page and R. W. Vost.

Members of the Sigma Tau Delta sorority entertained recently honoring Miss Page at a miscellaneous shower at the home of the vice president, Miss Helen Fulbright, 488 Page avenue. A feature of entertainment was the presentation of the bride-elect of a book containing advice from her sorority sisters. Prizes were won by Misses Laine White, Betty Milam and Irene Holt.

Parties continue to be given for Mr. and Mrs. James D. Henry, who leave at an early date for Pittsburgh, Pa., to reside. This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Carter Jr. entertain at a cocktail party at their home on Peachtree Way for Mr. and Mrs. Henry.

Miss Jones and Mr. Kelley Wed at Afternoon Ceremony

The Gordon Street Baptist church formed the setting Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Hortense Jones, lovely daughter of Mrs. J. Gordon Jones, and Jerry Hewell Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kelley. Dr. Thomas F. Harvey performed the ceremony and a program of music was presented by Miss Myrtle Belle Durham, organist.

The altar of the church was banked with palms interspersed with candelabra holding burning white tapers. Pedestal baskets filled with white gladioli completed the decorations.

The pews reserved for members of the families and out-of-town guests were marked with clusters of white gladioli tied with white tulle ribbons.

Ushers were W. H. Talbot, brother of the bride; O. J. Darby, uncle of the bride; T. J. Jones, Dr. W. C. Mitchell and Howard Lyndon Jr., cousins of the bride; Roy Cowan Jr., cousin of the groom; Johnny Masingill and Donald Wylie.

Miss Annie Merle Jones, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was groomed in tulle and yellow organza posed over matching taffeta. The gown was designed with Bishop sleeves and a close-fitting bodice and billowing bouffant skirt.

Mrs. W. H. Talbot, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her gown of cherry-red organza, was designed like that worn by the maid of honor.

The bridesmaids included Miss Agnes Williams, cousin of the bride, and Misses Mary Frances Long and Carol Hale. They wore gowns of light green organza and little Miss Lucy Mitchell, junior bridesmaid, wore a gown styled like those worn by the bridesmaids.

All the attendants carried colonial nosegays of pastel flowers and wore coronets of roses in their hair.

The lovely bride entered with her uncle, Mason Williams, who gave her in marriage. They were

Miss Sue Mable Weds Mr. Adair

The marriage of Miss Sue Mable and Rufus L. Adair Jr. took place on the morning of August 7 at 11 o'clock at the Gordon street Presbyterian church. Rev. Harold Shields officiated in the presence of the immediate family and a few close friends of the couple.

Miss Margaret Eberhardt was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a chic pink crepe model with white accessories and a shoulder spray of cream roses and valley lilies.

The bride entered with her maid of honor and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Marvin Pannell, of Spartanburg, S. C.

The bride was lovely in a model of tan linen lace, worn with copper-colored accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of talisman roses and valley lilies.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mable and is a sister of Mrs. K. O. Cole. She is a graduate of the University of Georgia and for several years has been a teacher at the Fitzhugh Lee school in Smyrna.

Mr. Adair is the second son of Mr. Rufus L. Adair Sr. and the late Mr. Adair. He attended the Atlanta public schools, graduating from Tech High and later from the Georgia School of Technology, where he was a member of Scabbard and Blade, A. S. M. E., Freebody Club and Oil Can Club. He is now connected with the Blue Diamond Coal Company.

Mr. Adair and his bride left after the ceremony for a trip through the Carolinas and the Shenandoah Valley and after August 20 they will reside at 101 West Augusta drive, in Greenville, S. C.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Pannell and young daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Evans of Spartanburg, S. C.; Dr. and Mrs. Herman Kropman, Clifton, S. C., and W. H. Jones, Augusta.

THE MORTAL STORM

Olaf Offers To Take Baby---Freya And Seppel Leave for the Border

By PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

SYNOPSIS. At the vast Moberg estate, where Freya Roth is recuperating from an illness following the death of her Communist lover, Hans Breiten, Freya suddenly discovers that she is about to bear Hans' child. Previously she has been about to marry a man named Fritz Moberg, but she has now changed her mind. She is now a free woman, and she is free to do as she pleases. She is now a free woman, and she is free to do as she pleases. She is now a free woman, and she is free to do as she pleases.

INSTALLMENT LIII. "You thought too much of me—and for me!" Freya said with stern gentleness. "That was your mistake, Olaf. Our responsibility to ourselves comes first—because in a sense what one is oneself is the responsibility that one has for others."

"How curiously you say that!" Olaf exclaimed with a quick astonished glance at her—"as if you were your father! Mother told me everything—after his death. I wish she had told me before! I ought to have known that my own father was a brute and a pervert! If I had known that long ago—I should have taken my life differently. I know that he meant to make it easier for me to escape any taint or weakness from discouragement, but I made me look at things wrong. I had a secret fantasy about my own father and this fantasy prevented me from really knowing—really caring—except as one had to care—for your father!"

"I saw him twice before he died. I wish she had told me before! I ought to have known that my own father was a brute and a pervert! If I had known that long ago—I should have taken my life differently. I know that he meant to make it easier for me to escape any taint or weakness from discouragement, but I made me look at things wrong. I had a secret fantasy about my own father and this fantasy prevented me from really knowing—really caring—except as one had to care—for your father!"

"Not otherwise!" Freya murmured to the little bundle in her arms, as if she wanted him to hear even before he could understand. "He was not angry with me at the last," Olaf went on after a pause. "He knew I loved you. He wanted me to, Sophie and would take this baby and bring it up as one of ours. I know very well that what he said of you was true. He said: 'There is a chastity that comes from courage, and there is another commoner chastity that comes from cowardice—your sister Freya was never a coward—and for her courage called in another direction than physical chastity.' It was hard for me to understand this but I do now! I had always wanted to protect and help you—you were to me a symbol of something holy in our German womanhood."

"I am not holy!" Freya said quietly, "and if I had been—holiness is its own protection! As for German womanhood—I do not see why you should think it different from any other kind. To me, there is only one womanhood and if I had no true knowledge until my child was born!"

"Olaf—say nothing!" Freya cried quickly. "I am not angry any more! That I can ever understand what you did—is impossible! But that you are still Olaf—can now see!"

Freya said in a low voice: "Then why did you come up here?" He said again, impatiently: "I had to come!"

He looked down at the bundle in his arms, and drawing back the flannel surrounding it, Freya showed him her baby's face. Olaf smiled a little. "I used to hold you in my arms when you were baby," he said in an embarrassed voice. "Mother always let me nurse you!"

"Well—hold him now," Freya said, putting her baby in his arms, "with your hand behind his little head, so that it shan't waggle!"

Olaf held the baby with a surprising tenderness. "What are you going to do with him?" he demanded. "Leave him here as Mother says? I have a sort of message for you from old Fritz! He was awfully cut up at first, of course—now he says that if you'll leave the country for a year or two—and then come back, he will still want to marry you!"

"How stupid of him!" Freya said severely. "You need not," Olaf told her hastily. "I promised your father to treat him always as my own son! I will do so. He shall bear my name and share my fortune!"

"But, Olaf," Freya said gently, "I love Rudi, and he is nearly thirteen. I have a feeling that he will not change in order to become a Nazi. Father wanted him to choose. Let us abide by his choice."

Olaf sighed impatiently. "What I really came here to tell you," he said a little stiffly, "is that if you leave here next Thursday night there will be no sentries between the Gaudeamus Hutte and the frontier. It is important that you should act on this! As for Rudi—he may choose, as you suggested, after he has done his military service. He owes that to the country of his birth! He is your father's son—and I will see that after he has done this he has a free choice whether to go or stay!"

Until Freya opened the outer door, she had not known there was a wind. It had seemed so very still, in the warm room, next the kitchen, where the baby slept. She had stood there for a long time bending over the high oak cradle, where Hans too had lain, and wondering if the baby would open its eyes before she had to go; but it did not open them. No one came near them or disturbed her last vigil.

It was almost a relief when she stood outside, with Seppel, to find the wind so turbulent; for no one can think much, even of a deserted child, who has to fight a gale blowing on a mountainside at a temperature below zero. They climbed slowly and unsteadily, bent double as they took their breath in short precarious snatches. There was no use pretending that the snow was safe for skiing. It would have been dangerous had there been no wind. The sudden drop of temperature after a week's thaw, had frozen its upper crust into a scratchy hardness; at any moment the loose base might shift, and carry away half a mile of snow, six to eight feet in depth. Like the violence of an uncontrolled mind, the storm was out, to shatter all purposes but its own. They plodded on, blown flat against the side of the slope that were zigzagging up, or suddenly propelled forward into unknown space, but repulsed or shaken out of their tracks, they still plodded on. "If I were not light and firm on my feet again," Freya thought, "this would be the end!" There was no color in the sky, and the morning light was a mere uncertain visibility. "It's a straight drive now—sleer to your left—and follow!" Seppel shouted in her ear. It was their last risk, and at the same time their last chance, for Freya knew that she was nearing the end of her powers. There comes a moment when to push against an insubstantial wall in front of you—with sliding feet—over a surface that threatens to let you through—becomes a superfluous motion. As it was there could be no style left in taking the sheer slope before them, nor was there any great likelihood that the slope wouldn't take them instead. All they could do was to crouch on their heels and trust to luck and their muscles to do the rest.

It was curious to be safe again, to hear the wind, yapping and leaping at the door—quite harmlessly while its victims sat and drank hot Gluwein at a reasonable distance from the fire. Frau Neuner led Freya off, to a warmed guest room, wrapped her in hot blankets and asked no questions; but she noticed the little gesture Freya gave involuntarily—after she had got into bed—as if to take a weight upon her arm, that was not there. Sleep fell upon her swiftly and with mercy. She woke, from a deep dreamless sleep, to see Seppel looking down at her. "In another hour," he told her, "we must be off again. We have time for supper. But before you get up there is something I want to ask you!" He drew a wooden chair forward and sat down opposite the bed. He was dressed as if he were going to a dance in his best leather breeches and a spotless shirt, embroidered in many colors at the wrists and neck; his heavy leather belt with its ancient buckle was, Freya thought, rather a splendid finish to his slender waist. She wished that she herself wasn't clothed in the heavy flannel nightgown lent her by Frau Neuner, while her own clothes were drying. She knew she couldn't look nice in it, yet Seppel's eyes contradicted this knowledge. "It's this way," he began bluntly. "Hans had the luck. But before he saw you, you'd got into my mind. I couldn't do anything about it—you only came up here from time to time through the winters and you were always with your brother and that young Fritz Moberg. I'm only a guide and a wood-cutter, though I'm better off than Hans was, because this Hutte gives the best ski sport of the district. It's good for climbing too—we get guests both ways—winter and summer. What we've saved we put into cows. We have thirty—that's a great help as well. When I saw you were playing fair with Hans, there wasn't anything for me to do about it, but to stand by him. I told you we were brothers? If I couldn't get you, I'd rather Hans got you, than that young Moberg—who wasn't fit for you—he had not the guts!"

Well, Hans did get you! I'd have died before I let anyone know then what I felt! But I'd still have felt it! If he'd lived I should have married a girl I've been with—and like well enough—but I'd dreamed of you. "That's a woman a man never forgets—whether he's had her or not—the woman he's dreamed about. Now the coast's clear again, and I feel just the same—I know you better than that, all, but you're what I thought you were. Continued Tomorrow (Copyright, 1939.)

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 9th (ARIES)—Before 10:35 a. m. is an excellent period to evolve new ideas and methods. Great strides can be made along intellectual, educational, legal and creative lines. After 10:35 a. m. favors attending to routine matters and avoiding extremes.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS). Before 1:03 p. m. holds conservative influences favoring affairs of a substantial nature, going at things in a positive way, attacking old problems and finishing up work that has been dragging. After 1:03 p. m. radical changes or departure from ordinary procedure should be guarded against.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—The entire day and until 6:30 p. m. favors ordinary and routine affairs. This is especially true in connection with communications, correspondence and conferences. After 6:30 p. m. favors dealings with those in sporting, social and entertainment fields.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER). Be on your guard against unsound information or entering into unwise affairs during the entire day. The aspects suggest that you pursue the beaten path. Be especially careful concerning your health.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—An excellent day to bring matters that have been hanging fire for sometime to a head, especially in connection with finances and personal progress. The best aspects of the day operate between 9:13 a. m. and 5:30 p. m.

Aug. 23rd and Sept. 22nd (VIRGO)—The period previous to 12:49 p. m. favors conferences, dealings with relatives, finances and travel. After 12:49 p. m. suggests using care in dealings with older people. An excellent period to exert all the diplomacy of which you are master.

Sept. 23rd and Oct. 22nd (LIBRA)—You may have a tendency to exhibit strong likes and dislikes today. Guard against the tendency. The day does not especially favor dealings with those in authority or trying to further your personal interests. An excellent time to stick to routine.

Oct. 23rd and Nov. 21st (SCORPIO)—Before 7:35 p. m. is an excellent period to evolve new ideas and methods. Great strides can be made along business and industrial lines. After 7:35 p. m. favors attending to routine matters.

Nov. 22nd and Dec. 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—An excellent day for promoting political interests. The best aspects of the day operate between 1:30 p. m. and 11:12 p. m.

Dec. 22nd and Jan. 19th (CAPRICORN)—The entire day and evening favors intellectual, educational, legal and artistic interests. After 4:12 p. m. favors indulging in recreation, sociability and the pleasant side of life.

Jan. 20th and Feb. 18th (AQUARIUS). The day as a whole favors attending to private interests, but does not favor expansion along ordinary lines. By ordinary lines is meant whatever your usual business activities may be. The best aspects of the day operate after 3:30 p. m.

Feb. 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The entire day favors musical, artistic, poetical interests, and for activities in philosophy. If you are wanting to talk to someone about a secret society, or are interested in chemicals or research work, today is the time to get busy.

FORECAST—"The Life of the Party," under the direction of Dave Elman, brings Hildegarde, Shirley Wayne—"Hellzapoppin"—David Ross and other entertainers, both professional and non-professional, to the microphones during the first half-hour of Columbia network's "Forecast" show over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight. Hildegarde will sing the one song she is always asked to sing at parties. David Ross will tell one of the stories he is usually requested to tell at a gathering. Shirley Wayne will demonstrate how easy it is to play a violin while wearing mittens. Among the non-professionals will be Cortez Peters and Tom King. This portion of the broadcast will come from New York.

The second half-hour of the program comes from Hollywood with Edward Everett Horton in the role of Bertie Wooster and Alan Mowbray in the role of Jeeves in a radio adaptation of P. G. Wodehouse's "Leave It to Jeeves."

CONCERT—Arthur Lora, noted flutist, will be presented as guest soloist with the symphony orchestra of 70 members under the direction of the brilliant American conductor, Alfred Wallenstein, during the Monday Concert program to be heard over WSB at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

This is the second in a series of four broadcasts in which the orchestra is featured. Margaret Spears, soprano soloist of the program, will return in September. The orchestral feature of the broadcast will be a performance of the Russian composer, Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Spanish Caprice."

The program includes: "Spanish Caprice," by Rimsky-Korsakoff; "Moment Musical," by Schubert. (Orchestra); "Concertino," by Chaminade. (Arthur Lora and Orchestra); "Ritmo," by Infante; "Fantasy," on "Greensleeves," by Williams; "Waltzes," from "Eugen Onegin," by Tchaikovsky; "Shepherd's Hey," by Grainger.

Tells of Pair Who Didn't Wed Living Happily Ever After.

One of the south Georgia week-ly editors has turned like the low-ly worm and is actually talking back to the local merchants—or some of them.

He says that every time he runs an ad for a Macon or Savannah or Jacksonville store the mer-chants accuse him of trying to send business out of town.

But, he says, persuading one of said merchants to advertise in his paper—and pay the bill—is like trying to take a fine, large bone away from a flop-eared hound.

He says that when a merchant's daughter graduates from high school or gets engaged or mar-ried said patrons send over a full column "write-up," which he prints. Then they send around for 12 copies of the paper—free, of course. Who ever heard of paying good money for a paper? Always a lot left over, aren't they.

This independent cuss says that once a hardware man sent him a half-column story about his wife's party and on the same day hung up 3,000 special sale handbills on the town's telephone poles. And the handbills were printed in Sa- vannah, not in the editor's job shop.

He says he sent back the write- up about the party and suggested the merchant hang it on a tele- phone pole.

He says, furthermore, he doesn't ask the businessmen around the square to "support" his newspaper. He says he wants to sell them ad- vertising because advertising will pay them a profit. And besides, he owns and runs a farm which has averaged a bale to the acre and he thinks his tobacco crop will turn out fine if the price is anywhere near right. And in the meantime he is going after just as many advertisements from bigger town merchants as he can get.

But Why Not Now?

Queer, isn't it, how you "never get" round to it?"

Not so far from our house is a hill. And on top of that hill is a place often referred to as a "beer joint."

Tradition says that while the Great Noble Experiment was in force one who knew the proprie- tor could acquire a bottle of pow- erful home brew for one quarter- of-a-dollar.

With repeal of the anti-beer law, I have been told, one can have his choice of several brands.

I like a glass of beer. Even two glasses. I see no need to go on and on and on with space—news- paper space—so limited.

With the boss of my household and perhaps a friend or two I drive past the entrance of that place about once a week, after dark.

Invariably I remark: "We've got to drive in there some evening and have a cold bottle and look the place over."

Invariably my helpmate replies: "Yes, we certainly must. Why, it's just around the corner from home."

But we never have. And prob- ably never will. And perhaps some day it may close up and vanish from the earth and we'll go through life, like Mr. Whittier's judge who had gazed upon Maud Muller on a summer's day and ad- mired her ankles, remarking: "might have been."

Clear Definition.

Edwin Callaway, of the Thomas- ville Press, defines the "unwritten law" as the tradition which makes it unlawful to drop more than a dime in the church collection plate.

Bouquet to Ellis Arnall, nomi- nated for attorney general with- out opposition.

He didn't have to, but he used an advertisement (paid) in most Georgia papers, expressing his thanks to the people.

Today's short-short-extra-short short story, complete in this para- graph, reading time 17 1-2 sec- onds:

They met, they admired, they loved, they kissed.

He: "Can you cook?"

She: "No. Can you afford a car?"

He: "No."

So she gave him the gate and they lived happily—up to now—ever after.

Story about traveling evange- list who singled out a bright-eyed youngster down in the third row.

"Son," he demanded, "don't you want to go to heaven?"

"Yes, sir," returned the squirm- ing seventh-grader. "But the cir- cus is coming to town next week and Pap promised to take me. After that I'd be interested."

Illinois doctor accepted five and one-half pounds of nickels as his fee for delivering a baby of equal weight. Moral to young econo- mists—go in for midgets.

Veterans' Hospital Expansion Urged

MACON, Ga., Aug. 11.—(P)—Assignment of ill Georgia veterans of the last World War to hospitals in other states and completion of additional facilities in this state will help solve the problem of a "staggering overload" of patients, C. Arthur Cheatham said here last night.

Cheatham, State Veterans' Serv- ice officer, returned today from Washington where he had con- ferred with the Veterans' Admin- istration on the matter.

Average monthly admittance at the Atlanta hospital for the last fiscal year was 267, Cheatham said. More than 5,000 Georgia veterans were admitted to various veterans' hospitals during the year. He said the waiting list has contained an average of 220 names for the last 12 months.

Eight U. S. Boys 'Over There'

LIVED IN OVEN This Texas woman shows the stove used as an incu- bator to save the life of this two-month-old baby. The baby now weighs three pounds, one more than at birth.

LEOPARD-SKIN SUIT Mrs. Paul Garrett, wife of the General Motors vice president, displays the "tops" in swimming apparel for the 1940 season as she relaxes on the sand of Southampton's swanky Beach Club. Fashion arbiters say her leopard-skin costume sets the pace for New York society.

FIGHT NAZIS

These U. S. boys recently arrived in Britain to fight with the Canadians, British caption says. Five of volunteers are from Mich- igan, while the others are from near-by states.

PREFER JAIL That's what these Estonian sailors who fled their country when Russia took it over, told immigration men in Maine. They're held for entering the U. S. illegally.

OF THEE I SING "Miss Columbia" helps dramatize the formali- ties of naturalization ceremonies in Dallas, Texas, federal court. She's Nancy Pulliam, Texas co-ed.

ARMY 'BLITZCAR' A six-inch tree doesn't mean anything to this speedy U. S. armored scout car trotted out at the war games way out in Yelm, Wash. Note tree falling.

FIVE DOGS, FOUR ARE VERY TIRED "Smoky" is trying to soothe his master's tired dogs with a wash and massage as they protrude from a pup tent, too short. Smoky's master is with the Third Field Artillery, Fort Riley, Kansas, which is participating in war maneuvers.

Says South America Easier Target for Nazis Than Norway

EMPORIA, Kan., Aug. 11.—The conscription bill does not provide for enough men, because this country may be soon in desperate need of at least a million trained and equipped soldiers, although they will never go to Europe and (if we get them soon enough) will never leave our shores.

So then why do we need them? Well, because if Hitler defeats England, he will presently do to us, through South America, what he did to England through Nor- way. South America will be much easier for him to crack than Norway was.

Norwegian sentiment was at least 90 per cent anti-Nazi. Most South Americans are anti-Nazi, but, in the typical case of Brazil, there are two and a half million Germans living in the country's richest province. They are not Brazilians, although some of them have been born in that country for three or four generations. The Nazis have taken them over bag and baggage. They go to German schools. German is their lan- guage and the swastika is their flag. Berlin has sent them school teachers and drill masters. They are completely at the orders of the Wilhelmstrasse.

Lacks Only Arms.

They lack only arms, and these will be provided as soon as the British blockade is broken.

Then there will be a series of coup d'etats all up and down the coast of South America, supported by German money and German guns—a dozen South American presidents or anti-Nazi dictators will be overturned as easily as King Haakon was.

Nazi-controlled governments will be installed in Rio de Janeiro, Bahia, Montevideo and Santiago. Nazi-controlled soldiers will be manning the harbor defenses of these ports, then available to the German fleet and air force as na- val bases and landing fields for bombers.

Under British Nose.

The fighting in Norway, which was under the nose of the British fleet, was all over in a month. When the Nazis are ready to strike, with our fleet tied up in the Pacific, why should South America take longer than that? A few strategic harbors control the continent, unless, of course, we have, ready and equipped, an army which could go down there to help the Latin-Americans re- pulse the invaders. Then they might never come.

As matters now stand, Latin America is even more defenseless than Norway. In Nazi hands, it would be an even greater menace to our trade routes and our de- fenses than Norway now is to England.

So if you don't want to help the British, believe we should stay out of Europe's quarrels, and, there- fore, favor hemisphere defense, get your pack and your gun and your tin hat and start drilling, be- cause you're doing it the hard way.

F.D.R. Satisfied With Inspection Of U.S. Defense

President Takes Day Off, Loafs Along Coast of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 11.—(P)—Satisfied that "we are really get- ting into our stride" in titanic ef- forts to strengthen America's de- fenses, President Roosevelt took a day off from his tour of New Eng- land defenses today and loafed along the Massachusetts coast on his yacht, Potomac.

The yacht anchored for several hours at Cleveland's ledge in Buz- zards bay, where bass, tautog, flounder and scup are running. Observers on shore thought they saw members of the presidential party trying their luck with rod and line.

Resuming his inspection of de- fense intallations tomorrow, the chief executive will visit the Naval War College, training station and torpedo plant at Newport, R. I., and cross Narragansett bay to the site of a projected northeastern air base at Quonset Point, R. I.

The afternoon will be given over to a survey of the submarine base at New London, Conn., and the establishment of the Electric Boat Company, which builds sub- marines, at Groton, Conn.

Later in the day Mr. Roosevelt will leave for Washington by special train.

Export Traffic Gains Through Atlantic Ports

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—(P) The Association of American Rail- roads reported today that export traffic through Atlantic and Gulf ports in July was approximately 79 per cent greater than in July, 1939.

Cars of export freight, other than grain, unloaded at Atlantic and Gulf ports in July totaled 46,554, compared with 26,058 in July, 1939, cars of grain unloaded at these ports amounted to 2,009, compared to 6,386 in the same month last year.

Tennessee Child Dies When Struck by Auto

COPPERHILL, Tenn., Aug. 11.—(P)—Ten-year-old Ellen Fisher was injured fatally yesterday when she darted into the path of an au- tomobile on the Blue Ridge (Ga.) highway.

Georgia state highway patrol- men investigated and reported the accident was unavoidable.
